

Prisoner Work Plan Is Favored by State

SHERIFF MARTIN

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Tentative state approval has been given the proposed work release program for Ulster County prisoners that is expected to come before the County Legislature again at its June 12 meeting, according to Sheriff William B. Martin.

Martin indicated the state approval for the project is pending the sanction of the county government.

A resolution at the May meeting of the board, calling for implementation of the program which would allow men and women prisoners to work in the community, was referred to the sheriff's committee for study and consideration.

Select Committee

Martin, hopeful that the measure will meet with success selected a group of men whom he will ask to serve on the work release committee. They include: Walter Wallack, former warden of the Wallkill Prison; the Rev. Clair Yohe, Ulster County jail chaplain and a prime mover for initiating the program; Lee Kais, representative of the Ulster Probation Department; Jerome Rosenstock, Ellenville businessman and Roy Jensen, Ardonia farmer. Martin also stated he intends to name someone to represent the trade unions.

The proposed plan would allow men and women, now in jail, to work in the community during the day and return to confinement each night. Sheriff Martin indicated to the Freeman that the sheriff's committee, of which Clifford Snyder is the chairman, has been meeting for purposes of studying the proposal to which they made some suggested modifications. It is expected that this committee will submit the proposal in the form of a resolution at the next county meeting, according to Martin.

Minority Leader Roger Mabie, sponsor of the original resolution has stated that the program has been found to be desirable on a state and federal level and that those who examined the plan are in favor of it.

The Rev. Yohe, in addressing the May meeting of the legislature, appealed to the board to "salvage men and save a little money while you are doing it."

the May meeting of the legislature, appealed to the board to "salvage men and save a little money while you are doing it."

Special

Calling the work release program "partial parole," Yohe suggested that incarcerated prisoners are "rotting" men and women who "lose the habit of work and are a dead weight to the county."

The program provides sentenced prisoners with the privilege of leaving confinement to be gainfully employed. In the case of female prisoners, it provides for release during necessary and reasonable hours to care for her family. The plan may include employment in a county other than Ulster.

In Trust Account

Earnings under the program are to be deposited in a trust account with the sheriff and the trust fund may also be charged with the county cost of the prisoner's food, lodging, clothing, traveling and other expenses.

In the selection of prisoners for participation, the local committee, which would periodically review applications, would give strong consideration to excluding types of prisoners whose past history indicates definite trends or patterns of behavior which would make their success in such a program doubtful. Also those who endanger free society such as sex offenders, drug addicts, alcoholics, escapees or runaways. Also, individuals convicted of crimes of an assaultive nature, AWOL's from military service and prisoners with warrants or detainers.

Types of employment allowed prisoners would include jobs they had at the time of their incarceration provided they were within a reasonable commuting distance and considered "gainful employment."

Prisoners without gainful employment at the time of their commitment would still be able to apply for work release providing they are willing to accept and work faithfully at employment secured for him by the committee.

U.S. Raids the North

SAIGON (UPI) — American warplanes attacked North Vietnam for the first time on record in six months today, raiding anti-aircraft gunners who shot down an unarmed U.S. photo plane, military spokesmen said.

U.S. Air Force F4 Phantoms wheeled and dived in attacks on the guns near Dong Hoi, a North Vietnamese port on the South China Sea 40 miles above the border Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

They were escorting an unarmed Phantom taking pictures of the flow of men and supplies down North Vietnam's panhandle toward the South. Ground fire hit the photo plane and it turned out to sea.

Picked Up by Copter

There, the two crewmen bailed out and were picked up by a rescue helicopter. Headquarters said one was taken to a hospital ship but the other escaped the ordeal without serious injury.

Spokesmen had no report on how much damage the two armed escorts did in their retaliatory raids against the ground gunners. The bombing of North Vietnam stopped Nov. 1 but photo flights with armed escorts have continued.

It was the fifth American plane lost over the North since the bomb halt. Four of those planes were unarmed reconnaissance aircraft and the fifth was an armed escort fighter-bomber.

North Vietnam reserved the right to fire on U.S. planes on picture missions, and the United States gave its pilots permission to fire back if fired upon over the Communist nation.

In Saigon, terrorists staged a second day of bombings, killing three South Vietnamese civilians and wounding 10 in seven explosions. One U.S. soldier was wounded trying to disarm another bomb.

Toll Lowest in Weeks

The U.S. Command released its weekly casualty report showing 261 GIs killed and 1,810 wounded last week—the fewest total losses in four weeks. The slight dropoff from the previous week was attributed to a two-day Communist truce and a one-day Allied standdown for Buddha's birthday.

South Vietnamese losses were put at 325 killed, 1,021 wounded and 30 missing, while Communist losses were 2,637 killed—both less than the previous week because of the truces.

The seven terrorist explosions in Saigon followed incidents Wednesday in which an American civilian was wounded in a hand grenade explosion and a minor South Vietnamese official was assassinated in the Cholon section.

Today's explosions rang through the streets between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m. following the overnight curfew. One blast ripped apart a small ice truck, killing one civilian and wounding two.

The second blast exploded in front of a theatre in the Gia Dinh suburb, killing two; the third detonated in Cholon, a Chinatown section, wounding a woman, the Saigon government said.

A mine explosion beneath a marketplace in the Mekong Delta Wednesday killed 22 South Vietnamese and wounded 27, according to U.S. and government spokesmen.

The bombings came a week after U.S. military officials had disclosed that between 10 and 30 Viet Cong terrorists had infiltrated the South Vietnam capital for just such attacks.

All Escaped
Spokesmen said the terrorists escaped all three bombings today.

U.S. military spokesmen reported three small battles across the country, a sharp dropoff in the level of combat in recent days. The fighting killed 32 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, the announcement said.

One of the skirmishes pitted troops of the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade against guerrillas 18 miles south of Saigon. Eight Communists were reported killed and one American was wounded.

Lashing out at the Communist threat to Saigon, U.S. B52 bombers dumped 360 tons of bombs onto infiltration routes between the city and Cambodia overnight, war communiques said.

Mexican Tennis Great Among 79 Air Victims

MONTERREY, Mexico (UPI) — A Mexican jetliner, skimming the rain-swept Sierra Madre for a place to land, crashed atop a 6,000-foot peak Wednesday and burned, killing all 79 persons aboard, including tennis great Rafael Osuna.

A helicopter pilot, who returned from the crash site 20 miles northwest of Monterrey with five airline officials, described the scene:

"Everyone is dead. The bodies are so mangled it will be very difficult or impossible to identify everyone. Everything is burned."

The plane crashed into a part of the Sierra Madre known as "Monk's Mountains." The range is lush with vegetation that can be seen for miles.

A Mexican official who flew over the crash site said the plane smashed into a 500-foot high sheer vertical wall.

"We saw nothing but a big black blob with smoke coming out of it," the official said. "Small fragments of aluminum were scattered over the site. I don't believe a single body is intact."

The official said a crew of specially trained mountain climbers arrived from Mexico City at 10:15 p.m. (EDT) Wednesday and left immediately for the crash site.

The rescue team made their first attempt to scale the peak early today, but a spokesman said the first bodies probably would not be brought down until tonight.

The team apparently planned to load the bodies into baskets to be taken to Monterrey by helicopters from Laredo, Tex., which will circle over the wreckage.

The Ancira Hotel in Monterrey lures tourists because of its view of the mountains. But a heavy, misty rain—the kind that lasts for days—fell among the rugged peaks Wednesday.

Fog combined to cut the visibility ceiling to about 200 feet.

Red Cross officials said the first attempt to recover the bodies would be made today. They said it could take up to two days.

Isolationist Implication

Critics Take Issue With Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Democratic dissent was Republican Sen. James B. Pearson of Kansas who said he doesn't know any fellow critics of high-level military spending who want unilateral U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam or to disarm alone.

"I disagree with the President," Pearson, an ABM critic, said in an interview. "What we want to do is to prevent the start of a new nuclear arms race. And I don't think it's isolationism to oppose excessive military spending."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright led the expected outcry from Democratic opponents of the Vietnam war and the proposed Safeguard antiballistic missile system—ABM—after Nixon's speech at the Air Force Academy.

But joining the barrage of Nixon said new isolationists have declared "open season on the armed forces" and were charting a disastrous course posing a false choice between meeting responsibilities at home or abroad.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Nixon's references to new isolationists offended him greatly.

Nixon's speech came the same day that Fulbright appeared before a Senate-House subcommittee to advocate a crackdown on defense outlays.

At an impromptu news conference, Fulbright accused Nixon of trying to make critics appear unpatriotic.

"Neither I nor this subcommittee is attacking the military forces of this country," Fulbright said. "We are questioning the political judgments that led us into this quagmire."

Another Democrat, Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, said it was unfortunate Nixon implied that "those who are vigorously opposing the ABM and defense boondoggles are unilateral disarmers and new isolationists."

"It is not unilateral disarmament to urge that we get down immediately to the business of arms control negotiations with the Soviet Union and, in the meantime, hold up the deployment of new weapons systems such as ABM which threaten to accelerate the deadly and costly arms race," Nelson said.

"And it is not isolationism or unilateral disarmament to insist that the war in Vietnam be ended and our troops brought home."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said that no responsible American advocates that the United States lay down its arms alone.

"What is sweeping America is a demand that we readjust our priorities and our goals so that we tackle the immense problems we face at home and abroad with realism and not with rhetoric," Cranston said.

Nixon Makes Arrangements For Light Housekeeping

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon set up shop north of his San Clemente residence today in the roomier accommodations of a coastal inn for a series of essentially domestic conferences and announcements.

The President arranged for office and conference space at the Newport Inn, about 25 miles north of San Clemente toward Los Angeles. Today and Friday, suites in the inn will be the White House offices from which Nixon will announce at least one new major appointment—a new director of the Veterans Administration to succeed William Driver.

The expected appointee was Donald Johnson of West Branch, Iowa, former national commander of the American Legion.

Nixon and his family arrived at San Clemente early Wednesday afternoon from Colorado Springs, Colo., where he addressed the Air Force Academy commencement in a ringing defense of continued U.S. military strength as the world's best peace guarantee.

There will be some advance discussion of his Sunday meeting at Midway Island with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam, particularly after Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, special assistant to the President for national security affairs, arrives here sometime today.

Higher ranking foreign affairs advisers such as Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U.S. representative at the Paris talks, will join the Nixon party in Honolulu Saturday night.

Dems Censure GOP At Rhinebeck Meet

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK—Town politics reared its head at the Rhinebeck Town Board meeting Wednesday night in the form of a Democratic censure of the Republican board's handling of a situation.

James Hawco, speaking on behalf of Paul Gmiener, chairman of the Rhinebeck Democratic Committee, judged the board's decision and handling of the Town Beautification Program at the May meeting as "callous and cruel put-down."

Hawco said that the board "should have taken advantage of the program, which enables a community to employ 10 teenage persons for the cost of one supervisor through state funds."

"You will never know whether the kids want to work unless you give them the opportunity," he said. "You said that there was no money in the budget for it, yet you used four times the amount allocated for convention expenses last year."

Rowland Sharpe, town supervisor, bridled at what he termed "personal inferences," saying that "politics prompted Gmiener to attempt to smear me."

Sharpe explained that monies allocated for one purpose cannot be shifted to another purpose.

STONE RIDGE

Action on the Marbletown Junk Car Ordinance was brought to a head here Wednesday night as the town's board discussed four of what it called "major offenders" of the long abused law.

Justice of the Peace Edmund Ruffner said he and fellow Justice Robert Diamond investigated and posed the cases before the board to serve as a "psychological pressure on smaller offenders" with one or two old and junked vehicles.

Justice Ruffner predicted that all junk cars that are in violation of the ordinance would be out of the town by "September 1."

Work by the two justices and Building Inspector Kenneth Smith brought one junk dealer before the board at the regular monthly meeting Wednesday, plus requests from two others for junk car licenses. A fourth dealer in junked cars has had a request and check for the license on file with the town since January, shortly after his old license expired.

They are Claude Barringer of Lyonsville, who has had his request in since the beginning of the year; William Kelly of Lucas Avenue, who attended the meeting; and John Ferran of Atwood and Ted F. Ayers of High Falls, who both had their recent requests read at the meeting.

All Involved—All are said to be involved in junk car operations that have in at least 25 "recognizable cars" and, in the case of Kelly, cars as far as the eye can see—in the words of Ruffner.

Barringer and Kelly were discussed by the board as wanting to leave the junk car business and were considered for licenses in an effort to help them close out business. The board members had considerable debate with the cases of the first two, in that both operators are now in violation of the law.

Both needed licenses, it developed in the meeting, to allow them to clear their lands of the junk cars and parts.

Kelly told the board that he had been stopped by State Police a number of times as he attempted to haul junk to loading docks at Newburgh. He said the police require a town junk license to haul on the open road, the local license being considered as "state approved."

One person at the meeting said such a license would amount to a "going out of business license," but Ruffner gave the objection that the new license would be the same as town approval of the operator's yard even though the operator had been in violation for some time.

Some Sympathy—Ruffner said "If we don't enforce the law on junk cars, you can just forget about your zoning ordinance, or any other ordinance" that is proposed.

He said Kelly had been a violator of the law in fact, but that he "has sympathy for his problem." The "problem" was described by Kelly who said "there is no profit in the junk" operation, and that it was costing him extra money to dispose of the cars he once was paid for.

An added problem of town residents dumping junkers in or in front of yards without the dealer knowing was also brought up.

Ruffner cited a recent case where a violator made an effort to clear junk cars off property only to have other cars carted in during the night.

Barringer, said Ruffner, was given "a raw deal" by a junk car compacting firm that moved its portable operation in the town recently. He said the out of state firm took only the best of the lot and left Barringer with junk parts that can not be sold or moved easily.

After discussing the Barringer and Kelly cases that resulted in apparent satisfaction that both would clear their businesses by the end of the year, the board read two requests for licenses.

The newest requests for the $25 license were referred to the Zoning Board of Appeals, who, under a "stop gap" ordinance of the town, have charge of new businesses requesting to move into the town.

Marbletown on Junkers —

'Major Offenders' Discussed

The problem of old violations came up once again as board members discussed past junk car difficulties with the requests of Ferran and Ayers.

Ferran, a Kingston used car dealer, was described by Ruffner as "honest John Ferran" who had cleared his land of junked cars in Atwood and was in a position to accept a limited amount of cars himself for use as fill on a private airstrip under construction.

Ayers, a recent Vietnam returnee who is stationed in Massachusetts, was said by the justice to be part of a junk car violation that now exists in the High Falls community. Ruffner said land owned by the Ayers family has about 22 junked vehicles in a hollow near the center of High Falls.

In Full View—The location, said Ruffner, was in violation of the law in that it is in the center of a residential community. He said he visited eight homes around the Ayers property and said the cars are in full view of all houses.

After a hearing before the board of appeals, the cases could be returned to the town board for consideration at a public hearing under the junk car law. As a "new business" both would have to appear before the board of appeals before consideration as to a junk car yard license.

The problem of compacting equipment for the town's dump brought the board to decide that bids would be advertised for a caterpillar front end loader that would cost under $9,000.

Loaders used by the town since the state law on compacting went into effect have been "run into the ground." The present needs for compacting equipment call for no more than a two-day delay in operation because of broken machinery by the dump's operator, Groves Smith. Supervisor Roy Webber said the advertisement would call for 10-day delivery and would require a service shop within 30 miles of the town's office on Route 209 here.

Kingston School Board, Teachers

Tentative Agreement Reached

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON — A tentative agreement has been reached between the Board of Education of the Kingston School District Consolidated and the Kingston Teachers' Federation that would provide for an across-the-board increase in salary of $350, it was learned today from a reliable source.

Negotiations started last Jan. 16 and concluded this week.

Board Meets Tonight

The school board meets tonight in regular session at the George Washington School, but no action on the new contract agreement is anticipated. It was learned that the district board probably will not act on the tentative agreement for at least two weeks.

Meanwhile, a special meeting of the KTF has been called for 3:45 p.m. Tuesday at the J. Watson Bailey School, for the purpose of considering ratification of the contract.

The $350 boost in salary would increase the starting salary for teachers from $6,450 a year to $6,800 and to a top salary of $11,100 for those with bachelor degrees, according to a usually authoritative source.

It was also learned that the $350 increase in salary would be tied in with another agreement that secondary teachers would teach five classes, an addition of one assignment. Presently, all English teachers and department coordinators teach four classes.

170-180 Items

Involved in the new contract are 170 to 180 items but none are understood to involve money other than the proposed increase of $350 for the teachers.

During the negotiations that lasted some 5 months, Louis A. Salzmann, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools, was chief negotiator for the Board of Education. Donald J. Sweeney, chairman of the KTF Negotiating Committee, was chief negotiator for the teachers.

John C. Tobin, an Albany attorney, was mediator and fact-finder appointed by the New York State Public Employment Relations Board in the dispute between the Kingston City Schools and the KTF. Tobin attended a meeting of representatives of the two groups two weeks ago, and suggested that the negotiation talks continue.

At tonight's Board meeting slated for 8:30 action on a resolution relating to classification of Non-professional employees of the Kingston School System is expected. The resolution will be moved by Harold E. Keator Jr., chairman of the Business Management Committee. It is based on a recent study conducted by the Municipal Civil Service Commission.

A dynamic five year program to bring the equipment in the police department up to date and more than adequate to meet present day and future needs.

The establishment of a program where, if a police officer finds it necessary to participate in another job, he will be able to do so with the city, as it is done in Oneida.

Although the full procedures of the Taylor Law, which requires boards of education to negotiate with its employees have been followed, there is still lack of agreement. In an effort to end the dispute, the board adopted a resolution on May 27 to reopen the discussions and a meeting of the two negotiating teams was held last Thursday. No agreement was reached. The board's team has proposed another meeting within the next few days, the announcement concluded.

The budget hearing May 6 was adjourned on a motion from the floor which was approved 378 to 300 on a voting machine ballot.

The major increases in the budget presented at that time showed an increase of $213,160 under instruction which includes salaries of six principals, assistants and clerical help, supervisors and teachers' $13,993.93 is noted for textbooks and new services. Transportation lists an increase of $23,129.47 for school buses. Under undistributed expenses teachers retirement shows an increase of $115,119.71.

Rosendale Seeks State OK To Release Sewer Figures

ROSENDALE, N.Y. — Rosendale Town Board is seeking authorization from the state to release cost figures to the public on its completed sewer study for the township.

The decision to seek authorization from the state was made at Wednesday night's Town Board meeting held at the Town Hall.

Supervisor Gerard DeFelice said he has received a copy of the study which took about 1½ years to complete. The study was financed by a $20,000 grant under the State Pure Water Program.

In other business, the supervisor announced that a public notice had been advertised for a public hearing Thursday, June 12 on the proposed zoning ordinance for the town to be held at Maple Hill Community Building at 8 p.m. This is the second hearing on the zoning ordinance.

The Town Board approved payment of $4,475 from the highway fund for the purchase of an Elgin street sweeper. The successful bidder was Clark Municipal Equipment Co., East Chester Street Bp-pass.

The board also set aside the third Wednesday of each month for scheduling any public hearings or special Town Board meetings.

A study of the proposal to include about 15 eligible employees of the township under the State Retirement System was tabled by the board for further study.

Supervisor DeFelice said the meeting was one of the quietest sessions this year with only one observer in attendance.

Another resolution on new gas and oil burning facilities at the Sophie Finn School also will be submitted for consideration.

The district trustees will meet in executive session at 7:30 p.m. and the public meeting will follow an hour later.

Ellsworth L. Johnson, chairman of the personnel committee, will report on resignations and terminations of professional employees, leaves of absence and extension of leaves of absence, appointments, extra credits, changes in tenure area and probationary teachers. He also will report on appointments, resignations and terminations of civil service employees, changes in status and salary, and increase terminal year's salary for Joseph Bradley, an employee who will retire Feb. 15, 1970.

Keator will submit a budget statement and statement of vouchers for the period ending May 31, a report of the collector-treasurer and details of the school lunch and milk program for April.

Joseph Betley Jr., 38, of 124 Smith Avenue, Kingston, was arrested Wednesday by Kingston police on a warrant issued by Ellenville Police Justice Ronald Elias charging the defendant with issuing a fraudulent check at a local business establishment.

Betley was turned over to village authorities for arraignment later. Police released no further details pending a city court appearance.

Lower School Rate For Saugerties

SAUGERTIES — Additional state aid not previously anticipated has increased the amount to be raised by local taxation in the new Saugerties Central School budget totaling $4,525,373.50.

The amount to be raised by taxes is estimated at $1,387,635.86 and reflects an estimated school tax rate of $121.63, which is $2.64 lower than the original rate presented at the budget hearing on May 6.

Budget Vote June 10

That meeting was adjourned to Tuesday, June 10 before a vote on the budget could be conducted. The adjourned session will be held at the high school auditorium, Washington Avenue Extension at 7:30 p.m.

The new estimated school tax rate is $8.40 higher than last year's rate of $113.23 based on $1,000 of assessed valuation. The estimated total assessed valuation of the district is $11,408,281. Last year's tax rate was originally estimated to be $123.16, but with a larger cash balance, more state aid and other revenues than were anticipated, the tax rate was finally settled at $113.23.

The announcement this week by Saugerties Central School officials of the new budget figures said the qualified voters of the district will be asked to approve the Board of Education budget Tuesday night.

Rhinebeck Board Meeting: A Lively Session

By TIM SCHUSTER
RHINEBECK

An ordinary budget hearing for the Rhinebeck Central School District threatened to turn into faculty-board negotiations Wednesday night in the school gym.

Henry Wheeler, spokesman for the Rhinebeck Teachers' Association, and Jay Koseff, a teacher, repeatedly tried to get responses on points of negotiations, before about 60 persons, from Board of Education President Robert W. Asher. Asher's response to all queries was, "No answer. I feel this would interfere with negotiations."

The faculty association distributed mimeographed sheets on its positions to all corners, explaining its reasons on four bargaining points. The impasse has necessitated a fact-finder from PERB in Albany coming into the dispute.

The faculty association sheet read, in part, on "the length of day for elementary teachers. The Association is seeking to reduce the students' day slightly, yet still allow it to exceed, by a small amount, the minimum number of hours recommended by the New York State Department of Education."

Also, on unassigned time for elementary teachers, "the Association is seeking at least 200 minutes of unassigned time per week for elementary teachers, during which they may correct papers, prepare lessons, or carry out any one of the numerous tasks they must perform."

On salaries, "the Association is asking for a salary agreement that is a professional one, that is competitive with other districts in the county, and that may help to obtain and hold qualified people for the district who may decide to go into industry instead of teaching because of better salaries." Ralph Haskins, member of the board, noted to The Freeman that the 1968-1969 salaries of a beginning teacher with BA were "right down the middle compared to state salaries, at $6,450."

On grievance procedure, "the Association is seeking binding arbitration for its grievance procedure . . . it is not reasonable for a party of an agreement to be the final judge, jury and prosecutor should an issue be raised by one side, claiming that the other is not living up to the terms of the agreement."

After various board members had gone over their respective sections of the $1,787,417.75 proposed budget, which will necessitate a $3.90 per thousand true valuation raise in school taxes, Jay Koseff read a part of the faculty "manifesto," which said, "We present this information at this time because the final resolution of these issues is vital to the entire school district. The Board of Education can not, in complete fairness to all, present a proposed school budget to the voters of the school district before these issues have been resolved."

"The Rhinebeck Teachers' Association would like . . . to have the Board postpone the voting on the proposed school budget until complete agreement on the issues mentioned herein has been reached."

Henry Wheeler mentioned three or four weeks as a reasonable time. The budget vote is scheduled for June 11 from 2 to 9 p. m.

Controversy of a sort arose when the following statement was made by Koseff: "The Association realizes that the Board of Education does have the power to increase tax rates and the budget after it has been approved, to meet the additional costs involved as a result of salary negotiations, which take place after the budget has met initial approval. However, it is the Association's desire to postpone the voting on the proposed budget to a later date, to allow time for negotiations to be completed."

Board President Asher stated that "the Board does not have the right to increase teachers' salaries after the vote has taken place, beyond the budget."

Asher added, "We would be liable to a taxpayers' suit if such additions were realized."

Wheeler, taking the floor, said, "The fact that we have reached an official impasse gives us the moral responsibility to inform the public. Is it appropriate to ask the voters to vote on an unrealistic budget?"

Koseff brought up a point of contention, saying, "Teachers are supposed to have the right to justify their requests for supplies for the next budget before they are cut back. To my knowledge, no one has been notified of any cuts or allowances one way or the other, and yet the budget is already made up. How can the budget be drawn up when we haven't heard of any decisions on our requests?"

Supervising Principal Ralph C. Steeves replied, "Teachers' requests must be justified when making the application to the building principal. The building principal then gives the results of his conferences to me. To my knowledge, no building principals have deleted any requests thus far."

An annual meeting will be held June 10, prior to the scheduled voting June 11.

Issues Are Discussed In New Paltz

By BRUCE KAUFMAN
NEW PALTZ

Candidates for the Board of Education of New Paltz Central School District discussed the problems confronting the New Paltz Schools and other local educational systems at a public forum, here, Wednesday night.

The forum was jointly sponsored by the New Paltz chapter of the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women in order to familiarize the taxpayers in the district with the candidates and issues involved in the up-coming school board election.

The district voters will go to the polls on June 11, to choose three members to serve three year terms on the nine man board. On the preceding night the school district budget will be presented and voted upon.

The candidates participating in the forum were Donald Martin, an engineer with IBM and the only incumbent in the election and his opponent Samuel Bodanza, assistant education professor at the State University, Dr. Martin Rubin, a local dentist, the Rev. Paul R. Mertzluft, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church, and John Ashton, an engineer, who are contending for another vacant seat; and Dr. John Hain, professor of education at the State University, who is running unopposed for the final seat.

The program was divided into two parts. Initially each candidate gave a brief presentation to the gathering of about 75 people attending the forum. This was followed by a lengthy discussion period where questions from the audience were directed to the candidates.

All of the candidates articulated their support for "quality educational programs" to be carried out without substantial increases in taxation.

However, there was considerable variation regarding approaches to these educational questions particularly pertaining to financing school systems and determining salary schedules for teachers.

Most of the candidates agreed that the method of financing local schools through property taxes was insufficient.

"We are no longer an agrarian society and real property is not the only basis of wealth," Dr. Hain said. "We should look into other sources of revenue and taxation."

Some of these alternative revenue sources were suggested by other candidates. Ashton, a former member of the board, indicated that the county sales tax would be a good source of revenue. Dr. Rubin suggested a surtax on the state income tax, and the Rev. Mr. Mertzluft said that school districts could obtain funds from Thruway revenues.

One candidate suggested that all of the school boards in the state should organize a lobbying association in order to promote the interests of education in the State Legislature.

All of the candidates indicated that they were sympathetic to the salary demands currently being made by teachers, but the intensity of their feelings on the matter varied.

For example, incumbent board member Martin, and professor Bodanza, who are competing for a seat, indirectly clashed in their respective approaches to the question of teachers salaries.

Bodanza pointed out that 55 of the teachers in the district are receiving salaries of less than $9,000 per year and said that teachers in this marginal group who are supporting families are "under considerable hardship and deprivation."

"Our board should not be proud of this salary schedule," he said.

However, Martin, who participated in the preparation of the proposed school budget said that teachers salaries have to be looked at in relation to those of teachers in competitive school districts. He said that the salary of teachers in New Paltz are higher than most in the region.

Martin also noted that when salaries are negotiated it is impossible to satisfy both sides because the board has a responsibility to all.

"This responsibility sometimes requires decisions which are satisfactory to neither side, nor to the board members who make the decisions," he said.

Ashton indicated that he favored a system whereby the board could "pay exceptional teachers exceptional amounts of money."

"It is unfortunate that education does not use the same incentive devices as industry," he said.

Teachers Paid 'Near Middle' In Red Hook

RED HOOK

A $500 raise for first year teachers at Red Hook Central School places them "about in the middle of the field so far in Dutchess County," said Board of Education President Frances Rabbett Wednesday night.

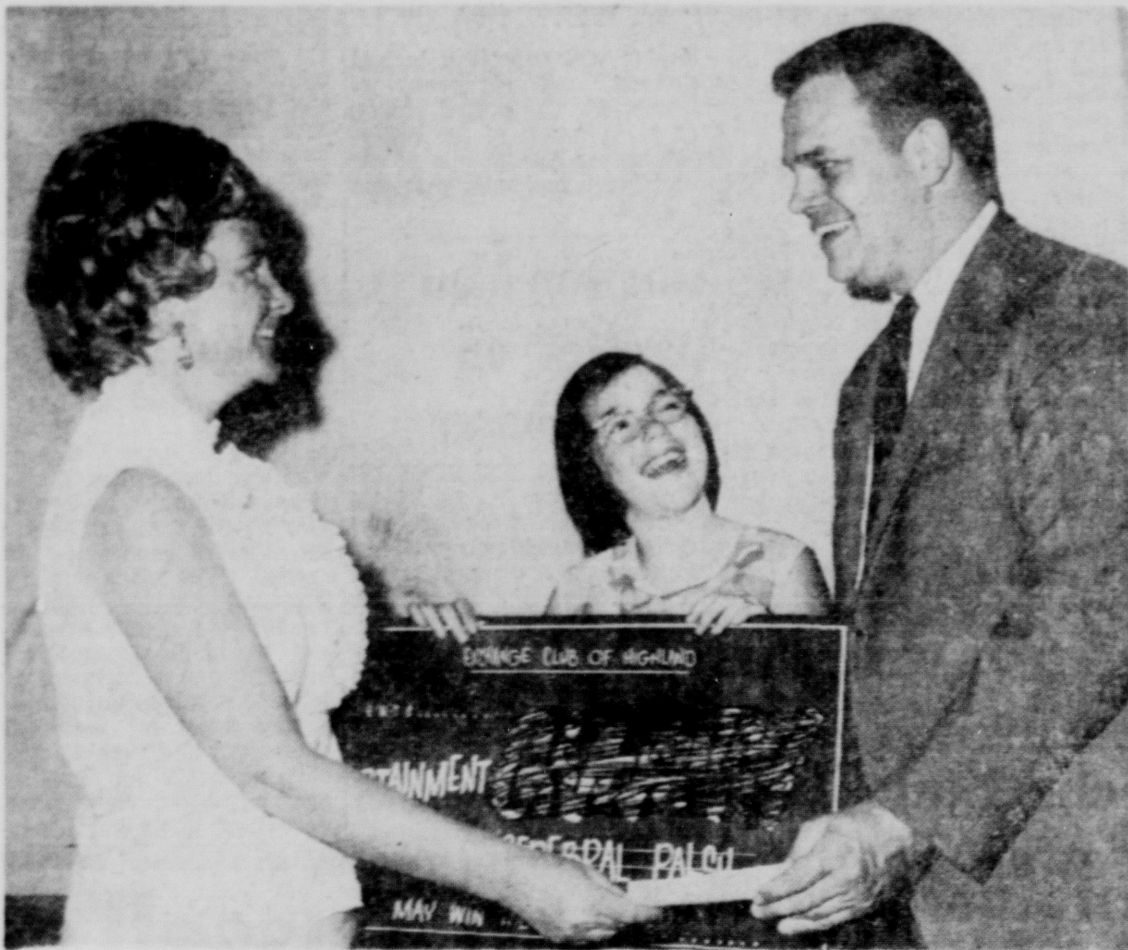

"There are only three districts with negotiations complete. One has $6,900 as a base and the other $7,100. Our base for the 1969-70 school year will be $7,000," he explained.

The Dutchess County Faculty Association recommended in advertisements and news releases last week that the base pay be $7,800. The official notice stated that any less would not be fitting for a professional job requiring a bachelors degree.

Highland OKs Budget, Salary Dispute Goes On

HIGHLAND

The salary dispute between the teachers and the Board of Education of the Highland Central School District emerged as the dominant factor at a wild and unwieldy meeting of the district's taxpayers, here, recently.

However, when the meeting finally drew to a close after 1 a.m. Wednesday morning, the taxpayers who approved a $2,302,134 budget and voted down a proposal to install portable classrooms, to offset overcrowding, had the last word.

The 1969-70 budget, which was approved by a 138-90 vote margin and amended to include an additional $5,000 for school supplies, represents a nearly $180,000 increase over the previous year's budget.

Similarly, the tax rate, which will be about $132 per $1,000 assessed valuation represents an increase of approximately $24.

Because the budgetary proposition to construct portable classrooms at a cost of $86,000, was defeated by the taxpayers, it will become necessary for some children in the district to attend split sessions during the coming school year.

The Tuesday night meeting attended by more than 300 taxpayers and observers, was the second scheduled district meeting since the board completed the budget in late April.

The initial meeting on May 6, was brought to an abrupt conclusion when supporters of the Highland Teachers Association, which was locked in a salary dispute with the board, successfully put forth a motion to adjourn.

The dispute, which is now entering its fifth month, surfaced with intensity at the Tuesday night meeting, when the teachers and their supporters interrupted the proceedings at several junctures, questioning budgetary allotments and attempting to introduce the salary question into the discussion.

School Board President, John Elia, said that "the teachers were using these tactics in order to delay the meeting."

He pointed out that state law prohibits the discussion of teachers salaries in the meeting, adding that if the negotiations currently in progress lead to a salary increase a special tax assessment will be made to raise the additional funds.

Fish on His Duties: Lawmaker and Guide

POUGHKEEPSIE—Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. has dubbed himself an ombudsman.

Explaining that in Scandinavian countries there is a government official called the ombudsman, Fish said it is his job to handle complaints from the public about government agencies or service.

Tax 'Take' Up

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—State tax collections jumped almost a third during the first two months of the current fiscal year as compared with a similar period last year.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt reported that the state collected $902 million in taxes during April and May. Tax collections during the two months last year were $778 million.

Levitt noted that Gov. Rockefeller had estimated tax revenues for the full fiscal year at $5.875 billion, compared with receipts of $5.087 billion the year before.

"Here in the United States," he said, "the ombudsman is your congressman."

"Besides being a lawmaker, a congressman is unofficially your guide in dealing with the maze of federal agencies. He is the person to whom the public turns when they have felt they have been unfairly treated or ignored by the bureaucracy. He is your man in Washington and in the district, to whom you make known your feelings on issues, to whom you turn for help with local as well as federal agencies."

Fish said some requests are easily filled such as requests for federal publications. But, he adds, where there is misunderstanding between an individual and bureaucracy, the solution becomes more difficult. The newly elected congressman said that in Washington he has two caseworkers—Marion Clow and Beryl Van Praagh—both experienced on the Hill in dealing with the federal agencies in behalf of constituents.

"It is frustrating," he explained, "not to win all our tussles with the bureaucracy, but the spirit in room 1230, Longworth Building thrives on a winning percentage for our side (your side)."

"As your congressman," Fish said, "I have a full time staff in the district backed by wonderful volunteers who are easily reached in my district offices. In Poughkeepsie, Peg Schrott and Helen Fumerello man the bustling Market Street office. In Kingston, John Naccarato is available at the 292 Fair Street address. Mary Mazzacano runs the Hudson office. This staff daily brings people with a whole range of problems involving welfare, immigration, selective service, housing, taxation and many others, into direct contact with their government."

"Between John Barry, my administrative assistant, Albert Callan and myself, we are in each office at least one day a week to meet personally with anyone who wants to talk with us."

"Please use these offices. They are your offices," Fish urged.

KINGSTON

Proposed state-mandated changes in assessing procedures and methods of assessing real property were explored in depth by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell Wednesday night as he addressed the Ulster County Assessor's Association at the county office building.

Bell explained the proposed legislation expected to be introduced at the 1970 session of the State Legislature, going over such details as who may be employed as an assessor, powers and duties of an assessor, the creation of other agencies in connection with assessing, tax mapping, appraisals and state services to counties, cities and towns.

He also pointed out, importantly, that no charter law, home rule law or local law shall be adopted which is inconsistent with the provisions of this particular legislation.

Saying that real property taxes are the chief source of revenue for local governments, Bell said the expense of running local governments in recent years has soared to create a drastically increased burden on real property owners. "Changes are needed, modernization is needed, new assessing procedures are needed," he added. Regarding the proposed changes, Bell said they should provide for:

Three Provisions

Qualified assessing personnel adequately compensated for the time and quality of work required.

Technical assistance to localities including advice on the valuation of unique and complex properties.

Updating to provide modern, suitable equipment and record keeping.

Among some of the provisions in the proposed law are those relating to the selection of an assessor. The law mandates that each city and town have one assessor to be appointed by the chief executive of the city and by the town legislative body. An assessor may be employed by the city or town in any other position not incompatible with the office of assessor and a person may be appointed to hold office in more than one city, town, village or county.

In other words, Bell said, theoretically, one man could serve all the towns.

ASSEMBLYMAN BELL

The bill also calls for a six-year term for an assessor beginning Oct. 1, 1971. Civil service requirements will not apply to the position but no person may be eligible for appointment unless he meets the minimum qualifications set down by the state board.

A basic course in training and education will be required as well as additional and subsequent courses, prescribed by the state.

Acting Assessor

Bell also explained that the post of acting assessor may be established by the local legislative body. Such an appointee would be named by and serve at the pleasure of the assessor. In other words, there is no limit to the number of acting assessors that could be appointed. Anyone so appointed must also meet the minimum qualifications set by the state board.

Appraisal personnel also would be subject to approval by the state board as would members of a board of assessment review.

Members of such a board would be appointed by the legislative body and have knowledge of property values in the city or town. A majority of such a board would consist of members who are not officers or employees of the city or town. The board of assessment review would hear all complaints in relation to assessments and condition was listed as fair.

it would be the duty of the assessor to attend all hearings and meetings of the board.

New Agency

With regard to county services to cities and towns, a county real property tax service agency would be created with a director to head the agency for a six-year term.

He would be mandated to prepare tax maps and maintain them, provide advisory appraisals, advise assessors on procedures, cooperate and assist in training programs and convene conferences of assessors within the county among other duties. Such an agency would, Bell says, act as a go-between for the state board, cities, towns and villages.

The director would also coordinate any county-wide revaluation program, report to the legislative body annually and assist in the disposition and sale of real property acquired by the county as a result of a tax sale. At present, the latter functions are the responsibility of the county attorney and treasurer.

He would also serve as a recording office, a function now handled by the county clerk.

With regard to tax mapping, the county would be required to prepare and maintain the maps in current condition. Bell pointed out that the bill does not stipulate what the term "current" means. It could be six months or five years, he said. The county will also be required to compensate the city, town or village for existing or similar maps.

Appraisal Service

In addition, a county advisory appraisal service shall be established with personnel meeting state board requirements. Advisory appraisals furnished shall be considered by the assessor in making assessments but shall not be binding upon him.

With regard to state services to the counties, towns and villages, the state would establish standards for tax mapping, provide an advisory appraisal service as well as set up requirements for all phases of the assessing program.

Bell also explained that the bill offers an option to retain elected assessors. In other words, appointed assessors are not mandatory. The only foreseeable problem, if a town wished to keep its elected assessors, would be to meet all the bill's requirements with regard to petition filing, referendums, etc. The bill states that a petition must be filed "not later than April 15, 1970" requiring the submission of a proposition on the question.

The proposition for the petition has to be submitted to the electors at a special election not later than July 1, 1970.

So, Bell stated, there is an option for an out if everything can be accomplished within the deadline specified. With the deadline following so closely on the heels of the 1970 State Legislative session at which the measure still have to be passed and signed into law, the time element could pose a problem.

Beleaguered DDT

DDT, the insecticide that was exalted for its effectiveness in post-World War II years, is today the target of an onslaught aimed at forbidding its very existence. All conservationists and lovers of nature will wish the attack success. But the fight will be long and hard, for victories within national boundaries are not enough. The victory must be global.

DDT is the most inexpensive and the most effective weapon to fight crop-eating bugs and other insects. But it ranks as a "persistent" pesticide—that is, one whose residue continues toxic for months or even years. There are other "persistents," but DDT is the most common villain. And, almost incredibly, one of the arguments being used by those who would continue its use is that countries whose agricultural economies are shaky would suffer a severe reverse if obliged to buy a more expensive but "safer" pesticide.

Several countries have outlawed DDT and the United States Interior Department has banned it and other persistents on its lands. After a two-year test, New York City's Director of Horticulture will no longer permit DDT spraying in parks because it is dangerous.

Russia and Britain are weighing its discontinuance and a high Interior Department official in the Nixon Administration has advocated a prohibition of strong pesticides within a three-to-five-year period. He labeled them for what they are: A menace to plant life, fish, wildlife and humans.

These poisons infiltrate, and that's why the war against DDT and its ilk must be worldwide. It took a long while to unmask DDT for the cruel killer that it is, but thanks in large part to Rachel Carson's book, "Silent Spring," the truth came out. All nations now know the long-time cost of strong pesticides. These chemicals are one area in which a divided world can and should unite to remove a common peril.

Youth Draft Advisers

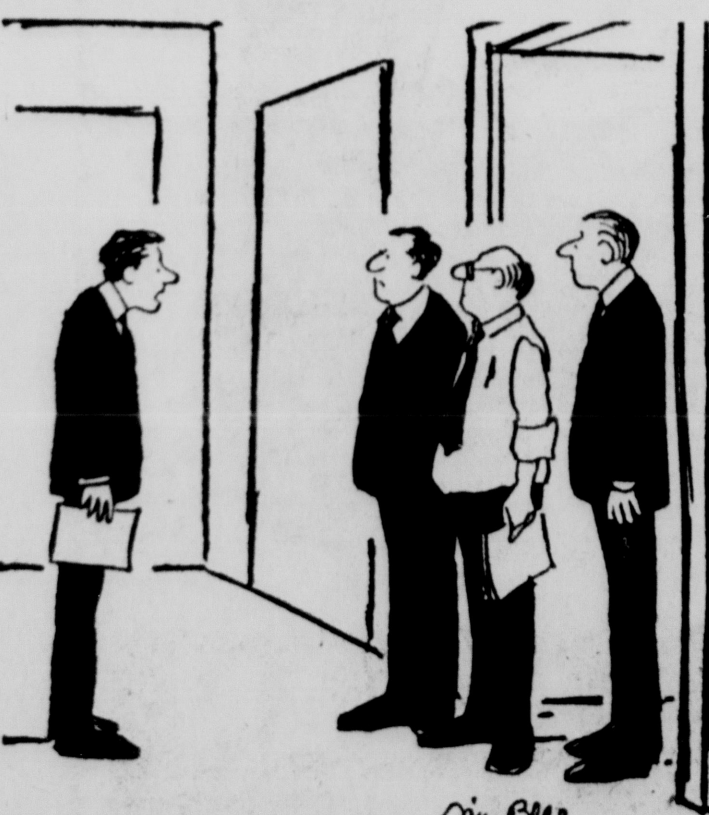

Draft eligible youth will act as advisers to regional draft directors about what they think is wrong with the draft and what can be done to improve it. This announcement by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the Selective Service director, should go a long way to assure draft-age men that everything is being done to develop a fair and impartial system of manpower procurement.

The point is that there have been no clear national directives for the operation of the Selective Service. Local draft boards are expected to fill their quotas as they are given them. They know the requirements fixing classifications. From there on, they are on their own. As often as not, they are autonomous bodies whose conscription policies are regulated by personal criteria of draft eligibility, local influences, and the pressure for filling their quotas. The result often has been confusion, heartbreak and even resistance.

With young men advising the regional directors, it is hoped inequitable policies will be at least recognized, and eliminated as far as possible. These young advisers will not be in a position to make policy, but they will be able to help shape it by their counsel. They will include youngsters from junior high school, below the draft age, to veterans of military service, who have gone through the Selective Service mill and returned after performing their military duty.

This is an exercise in responsible government. The draft boards should be open-minded and their youthful advisers good conduits of the attitudes of their generation. Out of it all it is hoped a more responsive and equitable Selective Service system will emerge.

It's Easy When You Know How!

David Lawrence Says

Dissension Within U.S. Prolongs War in Vietnam

WASHINGTON — The war in Vietnam is being prolonged and peace talks in Paris are not making progress. The North Vietnamese, aided and supported by the Soviet and Chinese Communists, are determined to make no concessions of importance. They insist instead upon the abrupt withdrawal of American troops from Southeast Asia.

The persons responsible for the weakening of the position of the American government at the negotiating table are here in the United States. Some of them are Communists who help to instigate riots and disturbances in many countries. Some of them are misguided individuals in the college who are opposed to the war in Vietnam. Some of them are members of Congress who are attacking their own government in the midst of war — an unprecedented instance of what would have been regarded as disloyalty during past wars.

Dissension within the United States has been one of the biggest benefits to the Communist cause. An example of how much America is being damaged by internal criticism is to be found in a broadcast made at 8 o'clock Monday morning of this week over CBS radio by Bernard Kalb from Hong Kong. He said:

"North Vietnam is exploiting Senator Kennedy's recent criticism of president Nixon's policies on Vietnam. Interestingly, the Senator's remarks were featured today in several Vietnamese language news broadcasts — that is, broadcasts for domestic consumption — indicating that Hanoi believed that this criticism of Washington's policy would boost or strengthen North Vietnamese morale. "In its broadcast, radio Hanoi maintained that — and this is a quote — 'statements by U.S. Senate leaders show that progressive Americans resolutely oppose the Nixon policy of supporting the traitor administration of Nguyen Van Thieu.' Thieu is President of South Vietnam."

The Hanoi Broadcast named Senators Kennedy, Mansfield, Javits and Mondale, but they concentrated on the remarks made by Senator Kennedy. "Radio Hanoi quoted the Massachusetts Senator as sharply criticizing the Saigon regime. About two weeks ago, Senator Kennedy spoke out for the first time in the Senate against the Nixon administration's Vietnam policy, charging that military action such as the recent battle for Hamburger Hill were both senseless and irresponsible."

President Thieu of South Vietnam is convinced that, even if the Communists accept some form of peace settlement at Paris, they will be doing so just to obtain the withdrawal of allied forces. He made a speech to that effect on his visit to South Korea a few days ago. He said:

"Afterward, as they have done so often in the past, they can violate again the agreement and renege on their troops to renew and reactivate the war while the machinery for allied troops to intervene again will be much more cumbersome."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who has been traveling throughout Southeast Asia, has talked frankly with friendly governments who have expressed privately their fears about our policy. The belief is growing that the dissenters inside America will influence future decisions and that a bigger war in Asia may come within a few years if the United States pulls out now and there is no firm guarantee that Communist aggression will cease.

The prospect of obtaining national unity has recently been dimmed by speeches in Congress criticizing military strategy and otherwise belittling the military command. This is something that encourages our adversaries to believe that the disunity in America must inevitably result in the equivalent of surrender.

There has been some quibbling about the fact that no actual declaration of war has ever been made with respect to Vietnam. But the truth is that Congress not only has by joint resolution authorized the use of American military forces in Southeast Asia, but has appropriated funds regularly to carry on the Vietnam War. There was no declaration of war when the United States entered the Korean War under the auspices of the United Nations, and Congress had ample opportunity then, as it has today, to pass a resolution opposing the continuance of the war.

The United States is engaged in a war involving more than a half-million men in the armed services, but is being harmed by the discord at home. In fact, the casualties have increased and the war has been lengthened due to the belief of the enemy that America is full of dissatisfaction and will eventually accept "peace at any price" and order its forces to come home.

Making a Student Rebel

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some most revealing things came out in a recent private, very personal discussion between a former student militant extremist and a friend.

In the conversation this young man, who had worked with the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), said:

"After having sat inactive, internally and externally, in school and outside most of my life, I could now picket, distribute leaflets, run off to Washington, work and talk with people all over the country, as if I had a connection with other people. It was either doing that or remaining... inept, selfish, bored, lifeless and friendless... I felt I would stop fighting I would disappear, because my stake and claim to life would disappear with it. But in the movement there was always something new to get involved in and I couldn't let my involvement stop."

"We had teach-ins. And in protest against the draft... we had a sit-in, sleep-in. We all slept together in the president's office on his rug... Later that week, I and a few other members of SDS went to confront the president in his office. I was aware of the fact that with me, and many other leftists, if we were granted what we said we wanted, we would not be happy. We could no longer protest. We would be useless. We would have to face ourselves."

This young man went on to say he had never really belonged to anything. He said he needed to feel a part of something, to hold hands with others, to do something. He believed, rightly or wrongly, that his parents had only been interested in pushing his intelligence, his grades in college — and that they had no relationship with him as a person.

In school, he believed, his teachers, too, were only interested in his intelligence, and not in him. There was no emphasis on wisdom, on judgment, on values — only in intellectual gymnastics.

Many of his subjects were in fields where "intelligence" was largely the interpretation of teachers. Frequently what was valued was his skill in verbal adroitness and his ability to reflect the attitudes and particular prejudices of his teachers.

Why was I given such high grades, he says in wonderment, when I was so sick? With all this, this militant did not feel he had any personal relationship with anyone — or with reality.

So, he said, "I was attracted to communism because Communist societies said they needed their people. I loved Fidel (Castro) and still feel positive toward Cuba, because their young people chop sugar, go into the mountains to teach illiterate children..."

Then he joined up with the radical militants, not because of what they believed in, but because he believed he was part of something — and not a nothing any more.

Drew Pearson Says Adequacy of U.S. Judicial System Questioned by Burger

WASHINGTON — It now develops that the new Chief Justice Warren E. Burger addressed the same "Center for Study of Democratic Institutions" partly financed by the same Parvin Foundation which has paid an annual retainer to Justice William O. Douglas.

Burger must have known where the money came from because the Justice Douglas connection with the group had been well publicized long before Burger spoke in the summer of 1968.

Judge Burger spoke before the center at Santa Barbara, Calif., and was paid approximately $400. Officials of the center emphasized that this was to cover expenses and was not a fee.

What Judge Burger said at the Santa Barbara meeting, however, is probably just as important as the fact that he appeared before an organization subsidized in part by the Parvin Foundation and Las Vegas money.

In his speech Burger raised doubts regarding the American jury system, the Fifth Amendment, and the present system of criminal trials in the United States.

His speech was reported in the November 1968 issue of Center Magazine, official organ of the center.

I say that the adversary system (of American Courts) is not the best system of criminal justice, and that there is a better way," Judge Burger told the Santa Barbara group. "The American final verdict and appeal, puts all the emphasis on techniques, devices, mechanisms. It is the most elaborate system ever devised by a society."

End Fifth Amendment

Judge Burger explained presumption that the accused is innocent; the use of juries and the consequent rules regarding evidence; the right of the defendant to remain silent; the placing of the burden of proof on the prosecution.

Many of these "incidents of the adversary system," he said, were introduced after the Magna Carta and after the development of a legal profession because lawyers wanted to offset the enormous imbalance between the power of the king and his establishment on the one hand and that of the individual person on the other. "But are all these devices of the adversary system valid in today's society?" Judge Burger asked.

"I heard one Supreme Court Justice say in a seminar that the presumption of innocence is 'rooted in the Constitution.' Well, it may be rooted there, but you cannot find it there. I think we have been deluded by some of our own utterances. Certainly you have heard — and judges have said — that one should not convict a man out of his own mouth. The fact is that we establish responsibility and liability and we convict in all the areas of civil litigation out of the mouth of the defendant."

"I am no longer sure that the Fifth Amendment concept, in its present form and as presently applied and interpreted, has all the validity attributed to it."

The original reasons against compelling a defendant to answer have been somewhat dissipated, the judge continued. "But whenever I discuss this with some of my colleagues they are horrified. They conjure up images of the rack and the screw."

Dubious Jury System

Judge Burger said that it is very difficult to explain the American adversary system of criminal justice to enlightened lawyers and judges in Europe. They are baffled by, for example, the exclusionary rule in the American system. This rule excludes evidence if it has been obtained by a procedure that violates a statute, a regulation, or a basic constitutional right.

New GM Lobbyist

General Motors has quietly moved a new high-powered lobbyist to Washington, representative Ernest Barcella.

The new man is debonair, astute Gordon Hall, who in 1964 was a top confidential adviser to GOP candidate Barry Goldwater, got him a GM "Stingray" car, and helped him write speeches. Though Hall worked in Goldwater's campaign office, he remained on General Motors' payroll, probably in violation of the Corrupt Practices Act since corporations are not permitted to make political contributions.

Complacent Democrats did not prosecute — as the tough Nixon administration is prosecuting other cases today — and Hall has now been moved to Washington to use his persuasive influence on the Republicans.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The family attended Commencement at Hollywood College to see Don Shoemaker, editor of the Miami Herald, get his doctorate. The ceremonies are always impressive, and the college president, Dr. Lee Garling, hung it around Mr. Shoemaker's neck and almost lifted him off the floor. A little more muscle and it could have been an educational hanging.

Later, Dr. Garling had a garden party in a sunny green setting and I was introduced to an elderly gentleman, a psychiatrist named Dr. Louis Graubard, one of the few living students of Dr. Sigmund Freud. Something about the planes of his face, the champagne sparkle in his eyes, magnetized me.

At the ceremonies, he had remained standing too long and the knees collapsed, the distinguished guests became alarmed and helped Dr. Graubard from the setting at Chaminade High School. At the party, he sipped a scotch, and said "It was nothing." He listened to the old world music being played by a string ensemble somewhere in the shadows, and, without a smile, he observed: "You can't keep a good man down. Sometimes, you can't keep him up either."

Later, we decided to kill the night by going to the home of Stanley Colbert, who was staging a velvet bash. Colbert, who is a motion picture producer, a movie writer, a production chief, has a mustache and small black beard which, when he grins, gives him the appearance of grandpa in bed in the story of Little Red Riding Hood.

Vic Maitland, an advertising genius was there with his wife, and Don Cuddy, a fat buff of mine, sat sipping whatever was offered. Colbert and I have both worked the Hollywood beat at one time or another so we began a series of hitch-hiker stories. These are yarns which, when told, remind the other man of a similar story.

Colbert has a beautiful avant-grade home which, surprisingly, has a roof. It also has tin chickens hanging on the walls — an art form which gives me a headache, an aluminum sculpture with white in the middle called "Baked potato" and chairs whose arms are made of old leather belts.

Once, in Los Angeles, Colbert got a big offer from Charles Feldman to work for him as a writer. I'm going to Boston for an operation," said Feldman. "So make yourself at home. Read all the scripts in the house. You may like one."

Stan expressed regret that Feldman had to have surgery, and the producer said: "Really, it's nothing. You see, I've been trying to sign Gary Cooper for years and I can never get near him. He's having a similar operation in Boston, so I reserved the bed next to his. By the time we finish our surgery, I'll have him signed."

Motion pictures have always been an unusual business, packed with purple people, so Feldman went off and had his operation and, in two weeks of man-to-man conversation, got Cooper to sign with him. No problem.

Colbert was getting a couple of thousand a week and he read every script and had several ideas for million dollar movies. However, Feldman went to Europe for the mineral baths and the sun and, after a year of collecting a huge salary, Colbert sent word to Greg Bautzer, Feldman's lawyer, that he could no longer stand collecting a fortune for doing nothing. The word came back: "If he hasn't any patience, the hell with him."

This led to the story of the time that Howard Hughes bought the RKO studios so that he could star a busty kid named Jane Russell in a movie called "The Outlaw." The day came when the great Hughes came to inspect his property. Producers and production heads fawned a foot behind the great man, who walked silently through the dark caverns of make-believe.

He didn't say hello. He didn't say goodbye. He made no comment. As he stepped back into his big car, a producer coughed and said: "Is there anything you would like to say, Mr. Hughes?" The silent one said: "Yeah. Paint it."

At RKO, Orson Welles was once directing a movie and he ordered pneumatic hammers to dig a deep hole in the concrete floor. He was down five feet when someone said: "What the hell are you doing?" "I need a low angle shot," Welles said. The set manager rubbed a tired hand across his forehead. "Did it occur to you," he said, "that you could have raised the set?"

Ben Hecht once told Hughes that he would have to be paid $1,000 a day every day — a check at 5 p.m. — and he got away with it. All I ever got out of Hollywood was the rare threat of speaking to closed doors with names like Zanuck, "Jack Warner." They'd have killed me if they knew I also shook hands with their doorknobs...

Believe Religion Is Losing Its Influence

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright, 1969, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J., May 31—Seven adults in every ten (70 per cent) think religion is losing its influence on life in this country, while only one person in seven (14 per cent) believes religion is increasing its influence.

These survey results represent one of the most dramatic reversals in opinion in the history of polling. When the issue was first presented to the public in 1957, only 14 per cent of all persons said religion was losing influence while 69 per cent held the opposite opinion.

For the first time since 1957, a larger proportion of Catholics than Protestants believe religion is on the wane. Many Catholics are disturbed about Pope Paul's birth control edict and the growing cleavage between liberal and conservative factions within the Church.

The change in the views of the public between 1957 and today on the impact of religion, charted in six national surveys during this 12-year period, parallels a decline in churchgoing over the last decade. Last year's Gallup audit (1968) showed 43 per cent of adults attending church in a typical week, the low point recorded to date.

Declining attendance among young adults, those in their twenties, accounts for much of the overall decline in churchgoing. National church attendance declined 6 points between 1958 (a high point) and 1968, but the drop has been 14 points among young adults.

Reasons for believing religion is "losing" ground include these: (1) "the church is 'outdated,'" (2) "it is not relevant in today's world," (3) "morals are breaking down," and (4) "people are becoming more materialistic."

But some persons interviewed see a growth in religion, although not of the formal variety. A youthful store manager in Santa Rosa, Calif., said: "People are becoming aware of the fact that true religion does not exist in dogmatic church policy but in the hearts and minds of men."

A 42-year-old East coast housewife wants organized religion to remain strong but thinks churches should "change their attitude to capture the youth," adding, "Young people today are looking for authority, but don't know where to find it."

In six surveys covering a 12-year span, the following question has been asked of a representative cross-section of the nation's adults, embracing all religions in true proportion to the number of their followers:

At the present time, do you think religion as a whole is increasing its influence on American life, or losing its influence?

Here are the latest results, based on interviewing May 2 through May 5, and the trend:

Religion Increasing or Losing Influence?

	Increase	Loss	No	No
	%	%	Op.	Op.
1957	69	14	10	7
1962	45	31	17	7
1965	33	45	13	9
1967	23	57	14	6
1968	18	67	9	7
1968	18	67	8	7
1969	14	70	11	5

Little difference is found between the views of men and women, churchgoers and non-churchgoers. Younger adults are far more likely to say religion is losing influence (85 per cent) than are older persons (67 per cent.)

Views of College Students

An even higher proportion of college students (78 per cent) than of the general population say religion is "losing" ground. And the trend here has also been in the same direction—four years ago, 62 per cent of college students said religion was declining in influence.

Views of High School Students

A recent in-depth study of 85 high school seniors and juniors from Westfield, N.J., conducted in the Gallup Poll opinion laboratory, the Mirror of America, showed nine in ten holding the opinion that religion was losing its influence on American life.

A pretty 17-year-old senior who wants to teach home economics, said: "Organized religion has nothing to give me, and I have nothing to give it. The churches today have little to do with the people. They don't relate."

from the ordinary, of course.

We don't slog them off. We ask that anybody requesting the trip write to us instead of calling—that way we don't tie up our regular reservation phones and we determine if the moon caller is serious.

"Each customer, then, is given a reserve space number. We send him a little card for his wallet which advises him just where he is in line and officially identifies him as a potential moon passenger. We don't take any fare, of course—but we advise him it may be as high as $20,000."

"Actually, we try to treat the moon requests as perfectly legitimate. And we're happy people are asking us, rather than a competitor."

Burns admits that some of the moon customers are a little peculiar (one gal wants to go "to be nearer my God") but he feels most reservations are being made by ordinary, excited and adventurous people.

A 78-year-old woman has advised Pan Am that she really doesn't expect to live long enough for the moon trip, but she hopes she'll still be around by the time regular space excursions begin.

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

Port Ewen Reformed Church May 27, 1969

Editor, The Freeman:

We are writing this letter for publication in your section "Readers Write the Editor." The people and pastor of the Port Ewen Reformed Church ask for equal time and space to be heard.

We thank you for the opportunity and for your understanding.

In a most unsympathetic article by a clergyman who now is a resident of the state of New Jersey and no longer involved in the life of the church here in the Mid-Hudson Valley the people and pastor of the Port Ewen Reformed Church were termed "lawless . . . flaunters of the law of the land and of the church."

First, may we concur with Mr. Vostello in that the ordination of women has been and is forbidden in the Constitution of the Reformed Church in America despite the many efforts to make a change by the Eastern Synods of the church. Here in Port Ewen we have felt the need to add two women as deacons to the consistory with all rights and privileges because we find in scripture no disparity between men or women. The only distinction made in the New Testament was made because of gifts. . . . gifts of teaching, preaching, administration, etc. with no mention of a distinction between men or women. In our Protestant tradition we confess that the church is Reformed and must constantly be reforming. We also confess that the final rule of faith and doctrine is God's Word as revealed to us in the Holy Scriptures and not the documents of men. It is here we find the Constitution of the Reformed Church in America to be non-Biblical and a denial of the "full participation" of women in the Church Community.

Second, we are well aware that we are not in accord with the Constitution of the Reformed Church in America and therefore we appeal to the General Synod of the Reformed Church which will meet in New Brunswick, New Jersey to bring this matter to the floor of Synod in June to discuss our action and answer the approximate 150,000 women who presently make up the church body and who do 75 per cent of the work in every church. We do this not to gain attention but to quietly demonstrate to our most conservative brothers that change must come and will come, and that we must not be afraid of "the acids of modernity." (At the most in the church which confesses to be a community where there are no distinctions but unity and equality.)

Third, we have selected two women who are well known to our community and greater Kingston who will in all senses, we feel, fulfill the qualifications of the high honor of deacon. These women are Miss Mary Polhemus and Miss Emily Card both of Port Ewen. On May 25th the day of Pentecost we did ordain and install these two outstanding women to their respective offices with both women knowing that this was to be a test case for a responsible and Biblical and Reformed response on the part of the Reformed Church in America. Further, we are cognizant of the fact that we may be called to task by the denomination but we will accept the decision of the church when this important principle is discussed and voted upon by our highest court and not the prejudicial opinions of clergy and laity who speak for themselves alone.

Believing that Christ is the Head of the Church and that our primary purpose is to make our witness real to our world to men and WOMEN alike we submit this letter for your kind consideration.

To Magnify His Name.

Re: Gypsy moth eradication spraying program.

As a resident, landowner and taxpayer in the area where this program is to be implemented I register my strong protest against its execution and demand that this program be discontinued at once.

It would be interesting to know who those all knowing people are and what their qualifications consist of to allow them to impose such a questionable and possibly dangerous project upon us. I don't want my tax money to be wasted on a possible wildlife, bird and fish extinction program. I also don't want the spray you propose to bless us with to contaminate my lungs.

So many questionable and costly experiments have been imposed upon us by various levels of government in the last few years, my confidence in the wisdom of some of our leaders has been, to say the least, sadly shaken.

Just two cases in point—look at the mess we got into on the California coast with the offshore oil drilling permits issued by the same Government face.

Department that apparently didn't know what they were doing. Also the destruction of hundreds of sheep in Utah as a result of mass spraying.

You wouldn't want to do something of that kind, even to a lesser extent, in this area, would you?

It is very interesting to see the many boys participating in our Little League programs.

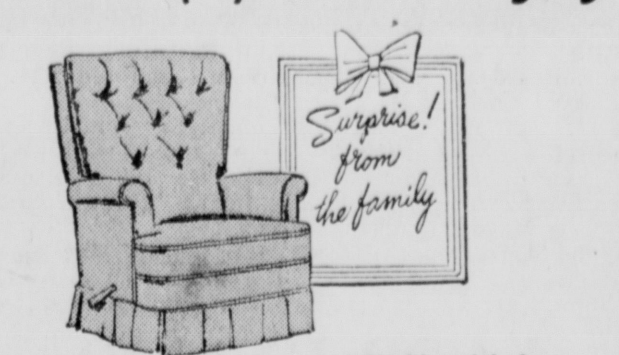

I feel that among the objectives and goals of the Little League is to give young people a program of organized activities designed not merely to keep them occupied, but also to develop healthy new interests through new experience.

To provide training in playing skills and the skills of cooperation that are associated with good human relationships.

To develop and train leadership qualities by and for youth.

To help a boy gain the understanding of victory and defeat. I feel that nothing can do a boy better than after getting a hit or making a good play to be able to look over and see the smile of pride on his parents' faces.

Give the Gift Dad (?) will enjoy

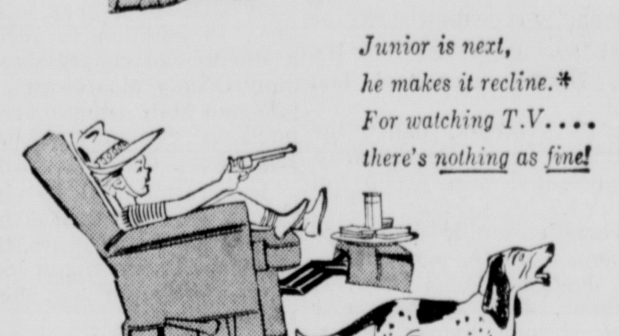

"The king of the house should have a throne here's a RECLINA-ROCKER all your own."

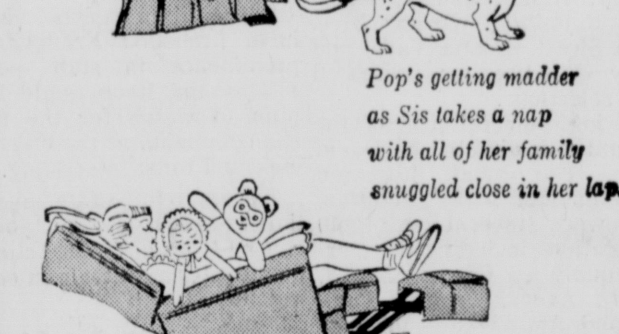

Mom tries it out the rocking is fine, Dad's getting perturbed; "I thought this was mine!"

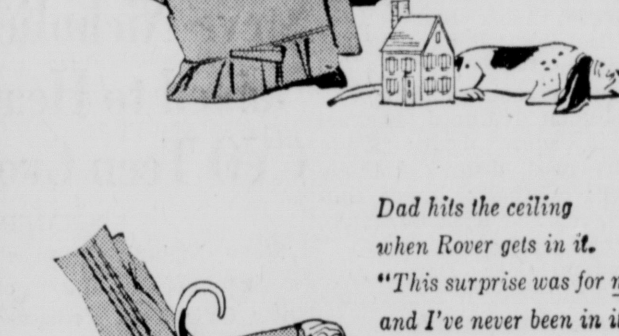

Junior is next, he makes it recline.* For watching T.V. . . . there's nothing as fine!

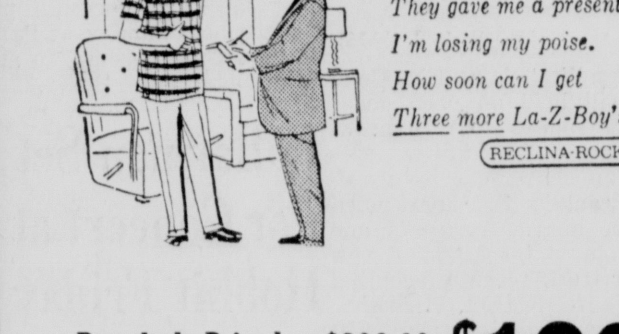

Pop's getting madder as Sis takes a nap with all of her family snuggled close in her lap.

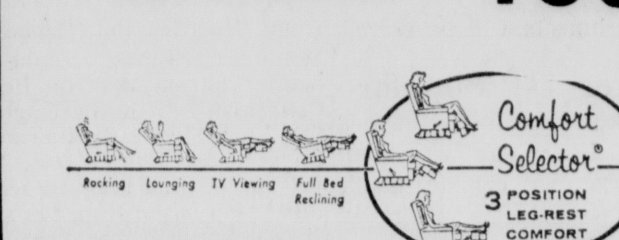

Dad hits the ceiling when Rover gets in it. "This surprise was for me, and I've never been in it!"

They gave me a present, I'm losing my poise. How soon can I get Three more La-Z-Boys?

Packing Bags for Space Travel

By TOM TIEDE

NEA Staff Correspondent

CAPE KENNEDY — (NEA) — It still may be a trifle early to think about it—perhaps 50 years early—but just as sure as God made little green Martians, interspace travel will one day be available to the public.

And it seems some tourists are already packing their bags.

According to spaceport representatives of Pan American Airlines, ordinary people by the thousands are now preparing for commercial space flight. Growing numbers are actually booking passage for the planets.

The situation began to develop late last year when a Vienna newspaperman asked Pan Am for a reserved ticket on its first passenger ship to the moon. Astonished but undaunted, the airlines granted the request.

Word got out—and now the line forms to the rear.

In the last six months, moon reservations have been pouring into Pan American offices at the rate of 50 to 70 a day. As of now, more than 13,000 people, from the earth, have reserved their moontrip seats.

"It's really been astounding," says one Pan Am employee. "In fact, the trip is selling better than some of our tours here at home."

To its credit, the airline agency has been receiving the moon reservations in at least semi-serious fashion. When the requests first started coming in, officials admit, some of the callers were shrugged off or cut off. Now, however, ticket agents are instructed to handle such requests with courtesy and resolute aplomb.

Says Pan Am public relations man George Burns: "We do handle our moon reservations a little differently from the ordinary, of course. But we don't slog them off. We ask that anybody requesting the trip write to us instead of calling—that way we don't tie up our regular reservation phones and we determine if the moon caller is serious.

"Each customer, then, is given a reserve space number. We send him a little card for his wallet which advises him just where he is in line and officially identifies him as a potential moon passenger. We don't take any fare, of course—but we advise him it may be as high as $20,000."

"Actually, we try to treat the moon requests as perfectly legitimate. And we're happy people are asking us, rather than a competitor."

Burns admits that some of the moon customers are a little peculiar (one gal wants to go "to be nearer my God") but he feels most reservations are being made by ordinary, excited and adventurous people.

A 78-year-old woman has advised Pan Am that she really doesn't expect to live long enough for the moon trip, but she hopes she'll still be around by the time regular space excursions begin.

Honor Local Pastor On 35th Anniversary

VETERAN The Right Rev. Monsignor John J. Reardon, pastor of St. John the Evangelist Parish, Veteran, was honored recently by parishioners and friends on the occasion of his 35th anniversary of ordination to the priesthood.

Michael Sheehan, who served as toastmaster, recalled that after graduation from Manhattan College, New York City, in 1923, Msgr. Reardon received his theological degree from St. Joseph's Seminary, Dunwoodie, in 1934.

Msgr. Reardon was ordained by Patrick Cardinal Hayes on May 26, 1934 at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City. Early priestly assignments included service in the parish of St. Mary Magdalen, Potanico Hills, and St. Lawrence O'Toole, Brewster.

In 1934 Msgr. Reardon accepted a commission in the United States Navy Chaplain Corps, and served in that command for 23 years.

He retired from active duty in the Navy in December 1966 with the rank of commander.

After retirement in 1966, Msgr. Reardon was appointed by Francis Cardinal Spellman as pastor of St. John the Evangelist Parish, Veteran, where he is now serving.

Honoring Msgr. Reardon were: the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles J. Kaufman, the Rev. Joseph Hamilton, the Rev. William Burke, the Rev. Francis Grennan and the Rev. Albert Brodbeck.

Msgr. Reardon expressed his sincere thanks to all who helped make his 35th anniversary of ordination a most memorable occasion.

On Monday, May 26, a Mass of Thanksgiving was celebrated at St. John's Church.

Local GOP Dinner-Dance Scheduled for Saturday

Spring Concert At Morse School Well Attended

BLUE MOUNTAIN A capacity crowd attended the annual spring concert of the Grant D. Morse School last week.

Choral members, under the direction of Mrs. Dennis Wurzel, presented two groups of selections.

A vocal ensemble comprised of Thomas Abate, Kyle Bonestell, Joanne Doyle, Michael Ferracane, Joan Gedney, Fay Harvey, Nancy Houser, Elizabeth Reimiller, Brian Rice, Blake Swart, Donna Valk, and Nancy Wittenbecher presented three selections.

The instrumental part of the program was directed by David Keehn. The band presented three numbers. In addition, there were several ensemble presentations including the clarinet quartet, Gregg Leard, Clarissa Avery, Eugene Paviano and Andrew Seamon and the Brass Choir, Brian Rice, Gina DeLong, Peter Shultis, Christopher Bogert, Philip Polaski and Patrick Sheehan.

Percussion featured Michael Mecionis, snare drum; Kevin Strich, bass drum; Anthony Corrado, cymbals; James Hallion, claves and Kyle Bonestell, maracas.

Winatoba Corn Dance was played jointly by the brass choir and percussion ensemble.

Adding to the atmosphere of the spring concert were many colorful decorations prepared in the art classes and art club of Miss Ann Swanson.

Vols Open House Slated Sunday At West Camp

WEST CAMP Malden-West Camp Fire Company will hold an open house Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at West Camp Fire Station.

The announcement by President Franklin P. Clum noted that fire district residents and guests may inspect the new pumper truck recently acquired by the fire district. All other equipment of the company will be on display and officers of the company will be in attendance to answer questions about the fire district and equipment.

Refreshments will be served.

Driver Ed Popular

A recent news item indicated that "In Ulster County, one out of every two eligible public high school students is enrolled in driver education".

Saugerties Central Schools' participation is much higher according to David J. Goble, driver education instructor and occupational education coordinator, who reports that only 16 members of the senior class of over 200 pupils have not enrolled in the driver education program in the Saugerties central schools.

Attend Competition

Saugerties High School Chorus participated in the New York State School music competition at Valatie recently. The chorus received a "B" rating in Grade 5 music. The music is graded 1 (easy) to 6 (advanced) and A to D, excellent to poor. The chorus is under the direction of William S. Carman and the music was a grade harder than it was in the past year. About 45 students made the trip to Valatie.

After taking over the leadership of the Albany County Republican Committee in 1966, he was instrumental in electing a Republican congressman from the 29th Congressional district. The Democratic Party had previously held that seat for half a century.

In 1968 Frangella led the Albany GOP to a near total victory. In addition to reelecting a Republican congressman, Albany County also elected a Republican state senator, two Republican assemblymen and a Republican district attorney.

As a result of these victories in an area controlled by the Democrats for 50 years, the Republican Party again became the majority party in the State Legislature.

These impressive victories have propelled Frangella into prominence in state political affairs and have made him a man to watch for the future. His comments at the dinner are expected to be interesting.

Tickets to the affair have been limited to 200. They may be purchased from any Saugerties Republican Committeeman or club member.

Collarmen Set For Concert at Hobbit Friday

KINGSTON

Friday night is the big night for Kingston fans of the Collarmen. The singing seminarians from Mount Saint Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, will be appearing in concert at the Hobbit Coffeehouse in the basement of the Fair Street Reformed Church, 209 Fair Street. This will be the final appearance by this group in the Kingston area, since they will be disbanding shortly.

Hobbit managers Tom and Sharon Phillips remind their patrons that the coffeehouse can only accommodate a limited number of persons. To avoid disappointment, those who wish to hear the Collarmen should come early since there will be no reserved seats. The coffeehouse doors open at 7:30, and the first show begins at 8 p.m. The Collarmen will be playing a large selection of their most popular numbers to leave this area fans with happy memories of the concert. Since the Collarmen will be appearing Friday night only, the Hobbit will present for the first time locally, a double billing of Kathy Lamb and Jan Christensen Saturday, June 7. These two talented young folksingers will be familiar to regular Hobbit patrons as members of the audience, but Saturday will be their night on stage.

Police Thwart Diner Burglary

KINGSTON

A tip from a passerby reporting someone was burglarizing the Grand Diner at 525 Albany, resulted in an investigation late Wednesday night, but the intruder made a getaway before arrival of police.

Det. Lieut. Lemuel Howard said a call was received at police headquarters at 10:15 p.m. and detectives and uniformed officers went to the diner. On arrival they found the place had been entered by removing a screen on the wash room window. They also discovered the rear door was unlocked.

Search was conducted but the person, described as a youth, was not found. The investigation is continuing, Howard said.

Tennis Great ...

piece together the story of the tragedy.

The hotel clerk was able to rattle off the names of the well-known persons on board:

—Rafael Osuna, 30, Mexico's top-ranked amateur tennis player and hero of the surprising Mexican victory over Australia in Davis Cup competition just 11 days ago.

—Carlos Madrazo, a former chairman of one of Mexico's political parties—the "bad boy of Mexican politics"—and the nation's most controversial political figure—who, together with his wife, attempted to establish an effective political opposition.

—Raul Chapa Zarate, chief of the federal highway police.

—Eloy Espinosa, the political leader of the country's farm bloc.

—Manuel Lemus, a student political leader.

—Carlos A. Madrazo, former governor of the Mexican State of Tabasco.

In all, the plane carried 72 passengers, a pilot, two copilots, three stewards and a stewardess.

The three jet-engine Boeing 727 left Mexico City at 9 a.m. (EDT) bound for Monterrey.

Pilot Carlos de Iturbide, 47, "could not land here because of the heavy rain and thick fog over the field," said the air controller at the Monterrey tower.

The pilot guided his plane north. Monterrey officials guessed he probably would try to land at Laredo, Tex., or its neighbor, Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, 140 miles north of Monterrey.

His last radio communication was with the light plane airstrip at Cienaga de las Flores, 20 miles northeast of Monterrey. The wreckage of the plane was spotted due west of the strip, indicating the pilot may have turned south again for another attempt to land at Monterrey.

Two Charged With Burglary On Parkway

CLINTON CORNERS

While on patrol on the Taconic State Parkway shortly before 3 a. m. today, Troopers G. E. Millett and T. L. Grant of the Rhinebeck sub-station found the Clinton Corners service Station had been burglarized.

The troopers discovered a disabled vehicle not far from the station and after questioning the occupants, arrested Stephen J. Healy, 16, of 1999 Gleason Avenue, the Bronx, and a juvenile on charges of third degree burglary. Three others in the vehicle were not involved. Two of them were sleeping in the car and the third had refused to participate in the break-in.

Healy was arraigned before Clinton Town Justice William G. Tompkins. The boy was held for an appearance in Dutchess County Family Court.

BLUE STAMPS EVERY WEDNESDAY!

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened mixed today in moderately active trading.

Possibility of a boost in prime lending rates continued to hang over Wall Street and appeared to be the major obstacle to any big move on the upside. But hopes for a breakthrough on Vietnam amid renewed talk of possible U.S. troop withdrawals could act as a constructive influence, as was the case early Wednesday.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI stock market indicator was up 0.01 per cent on 412 issues on the tape. Of these, 148 declined and 145 advanced.

Steels worked higher, as did chemicals. Oils and electronics were mixed.

Inland Steel gained $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, with U.S. Steel up a similar amount.

In the chemicals, Dow picked up $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢, while Eastman Kodak gained $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢.

Penn Central rose $\frac{1}{4}$ among the rails, but Boeing dipped $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ in the aerospace group, and McDonnell-Douglas $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢.

Quotations by Loeb, Rhoades & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, Kingston Branch, Kingston Plaza, Kingston, N. Y., Frank D. Hoornbeek, manager.

18 Facing Sentence Will Be Released

LISBON (AP)—Heeding a Portuguese request, the Biafrans are going to release the 18 foreign oilmen they sentenced to death, the Portuguese Foreign Ministry announced Wednesday night.

A spokesman said the men—14 Italians, three West Germans and one Lebanese—would be free after some procedural matters were worked out. He did not elaborate.

Portugal, one of the secessionist state's most important allies, protested the death sentences Tuesday in what a government spokesman described as "the strongest possible language."

The oilmen were captured by the Biafrans last month in the state of Midwest Nigeria where they were working on a drilling job for AGIP, an oil exploration firm run by the Italian state petroleum company and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla.

Eleven other foreign oilmen—10 Italians and a Jordanian—were slain when fighting between Biafran and Nigerian troops reached their camp near Kwaile. The bodies of the 11 were found last week when the Nigerians regained the oil camp.

The Biafrans claimed the foreigners were fighting alongside the Nigerians, but AGIP denied this. Nigerian army officers who recaptured the campsite said the bodies had been burned by the Biafrans.

There had been speculation that Biafran leaders would demand aid from foreign governments or petroleum firms as their price for freeing the men. Biafra has accused foreign oil companies of collaborating with the Nigerian government in the civil war. Biafran Information Minister I. Y. Eke asserted Wednesday: "The moment oil companies stop paying royalties to the federal government, at that moment the war will stop." Nigeria's oil is in the eastern region where the Biafrans declared their independence, but much of the oil lands have been regained by the Nigerian army. Meanwhile, a Canadian oilman reported Wednesday that he and three American companions were robbed of $1,000 Sunday by Nigerian soldiers who roused them from their beds in an isolated camp about 25 miles southwest of Kwaile.

Dennis McCaughey of Ponaka, Alta., said: "We were thinking about what happened at Kwaile, but we didn't talk about it until the men left." The Americans were Leon Fitzsimmons, Sallisaw, Okla.; Deland Cannaday, Stillwater, Okla.; and Bob Lester of California.

None of the four was injured, but Fred E. Lae, manager of the Sante Fe Drilling Co. of Sante Fe Springs, Calif., flew to Benin City, capital of the Midwest state, to demand protection from the Nigerian army.

Robie Given Deadline To Resume Rondout Work

KINGSTON—The Kingston Housing Authority has set a June 9 deadline for the resumption of work by its general contractor on Rondout Gardens in Broadway East.

A meeting in relation to the completion of Rondout Gardens was held in New York City yesterday. The contractor, Robie Construction, ceased work on the $2,100,000 project on Monday.

Yosman stated today that the contractor has been given a five-day notice advising (him) that he was in default of his contract. It was further resolved, according to Yosman, that if the general contractor does not resume work, the Kingston Housing Authority will hire the necessary personnel to complete the three buildings which will be available for July 1 occupancy.

The remainder of the development will be completed in accordance with agreement to be reached with the Bonding Company, Yosman said today.

Auto Charges

Two youths were arrested early today by city police on charges of unlawful use of a motor vehicle belonging to Alonzer Trammell of 303 Foxhall Avenue, who had reported the vehicle missing.

Booked and scheduled for appearance in City Court were Dennis Ferguson, 17, and Durwin Wesley Ennist, 16, who said they reside on Gill Street. The car was recovered and returned to the owner.

The grant was made on Part A, Title 6 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 which covers instructional equipment programs to improve undergraduate instruction. The grant was recommended by the State Department of Education at Albany, Fish stated.

Allegany County Dentists Rebel Against Medicaid

WELLSVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—The Allegany County Dental Society has added its name to a growing list of dental and medical societies withdrawing from the participation in the state's Medicaid program.

The Allegany County dentists announced Wednesday unanimous agreement that they were "ethically obligated to withdraw from the program."

Last Monday the county's medical society passed a similar resolution withdrawing from the program, but emphasized they would treat emergency cases.

Tuesday it was announced the Cayuga County and St. Lawrence County Dental Societies would withdraw.

And earlier it was reported the Chautauqua and Onondaga County Medical Societies had refused to continue taking patients under the plan.

The doctors and dentists are rebelling over a law, effective July 1, that cuts fees paid by physicians and dentists by 20 percent. The law also places the responsibility for payment of the first 20 percent of any bill on the patient and mandates the doctor or dentist show duplicate receipts that the patient paid his share.

Nov. 30 after police investigated "It is no longer possible to render quality dentistry under the present rules of the Medicaid program," the Allegany dentists said in their resolution, tending was deferred until to Dr. Irwin Felsen, of the Alle-gany medical group, used stronger language. Dr. Felsen, secretary of the medical society, said the new fee schedule was "morally indefensible and discriminatory against the poor."

He said the fee reduction was "unjustifiable, arbitrary and in violation of the state's policy of the usual, customary and reasonable fee concept."

Dr. Felsen said under the reasonable fee concept, contained in a physicians' manual issued by the State Dept. of Health, the price of an office call was established at $5.00.

The 20 percent reduction in fees would set the office call rate at $4.00, 50 cents below that established when the Medicaid program was started in 1966, Dr. Felsen said.

Year in Jail

KINGSTON—Antonio Spongia, 29, of 63 German Street, today was sentenced to one year in the County Jail by Special City Judge George A. Beck, following his conviction by a jury on a charge of endangering the welfare of a child.

Spongia was arrested last Nov. 30 after police investigated a complaint from a parent, not rendered quality dentistry under the present rules of the Medicaid program," the Allegany defendant was convicted. Sentencing was deferred until to Dr. Irwin Felsen, of the Alle-

Mutual Insurers Cited for Success

The Mutual Insurers Agency, Inc., of Kingston has been singled out for its unusual success by Central Mutual Insurance Company. The agency and its people are the featured subjects of the May issue of the company's nationally distributed magazine, The Centralizer.

The principals are William Kuehn, who has been with the Mutual Insurers Agency, Inc., here since 1932, the director, and his son-in-law, John Mazzuca, both Kingston natives.

Kuehn and Mazzuca are counting on the local personal service to overcome the threat of New York City-based agency competition. "With John's and my real concern for personal, home-town kind of service," Kuehn said, "we expect the agency to progress right along with the area." He added, "We'll continue to count on Central, too. Over the years, even back to the early 30's, they've given us good service. The district managers, especially have been exceptional. Ours is top-notch."

Leary, Son Are Ordered To Stand Trial

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Timothy Leary, disciple of LSD, his wife and son were ordered to stand trial Wednesday for possession of marijuana.

The trio had been scheduled to appear in court to enter a plea but when only their attorneys showed up, Superior Court Judge James Judge entered innocent pleas on behalf of the three defendants and set trial for Sept. 30.

The judge also denied a motion to dismiss the charges.

Leary, 48, his wife, Rosemary, 33 and son, John 19, were arrested last December in Laguna Beach after police stopped their car for a traffic violation and found marijuana inside.

180 to Graduate From Ulster College

KINGSTON — About 180 students at Ulster County Community College will graduate Sunday in a ceremony planned at the College's Stone Ridge campus starting at 3 p.m. It is the largest number of students the college has graduated since it was started in 1963.

In case of rain, the graduation will be held at the Rondout Valley Central School gymnasium.

The principal speaker at the graduation will be Dr. Stephen K. Bailey, chairman of the Policy Institute of the Syracuse University Research Corporation and Maxwell Professor of Political Science in the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs of Syracuse University.

The 180 students scheduled to receive degrees and diplomas represent an increase of 16 per cent over the 155 students who were graduated last year.

Approximately 1,200 persons are expected to attend the graduation ceremony, planned for the plaza in front of the Macdonald DeWitt Library, according to Richard Gelston, committee chairman.

The invocation and benediction will be given by the Rt. Rev. John J. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Kingston and dean of the Catholic clergy in Ulster County.

Legislator Douglas Dye is scheduled to represent the County Legislature at the graduation.

The principal speaker, Dr. Bailey, was a Rhodes Scholar from 1937 to 1939 and received both a B.A. and M.A. degrees from Oxford University. He also holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University.

Before joining the Maxwell School in 1959 as Professor of Political Science, Dean Bailey served on the faculties of Hiram College, Wesleyan University and Princeton University. At Princeton he was William Church Osborn Professor of Public Affairs and Director of the Graduate Program in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. He has also been a Fulbright lecturer in American Government at Oxford University.

Dr. Bailey is currently Secretary-Treasurer of the National Academy of Education and is a past President of the American Society for Public Administration and a past Vice-President of the American Political Science Association.

In addition to his academic and professional activities, Dr. Bailey is an active participant in public affairs. He is currently a member of the Board of Regents of the State of New York and Chairman of the National Advisory Committee on Educational Laboratories (Department of HEW).

In 1964 he was a member of the Presidential Task Force on Governmental Reorganization and in 1965 he headed the U.S.

Bureau of the Budget Task Force on Intergovernmental Program Coordination. In the past Dr. Bailey has served as a Staff Associate to Task Force No. 1 on the Presidency by the first Hoover Commission.

Later he became Director of Task Force No. 1 on the Executive branch for the Connecticut Commission on State Government Organization. Dr. Bailey was Chairman of the Connecticut Democratic State Platform Committee in 1950 and in 1951 became Administrative Assistant to Senator William Benton of Connecticut. He was elected Mayor of Middletown, Conn., in 1952.

Benedictine Nursing School---The Doors Are Closing

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing graduates a class of 20 this Sunday. For the young nurses it is a beginning, for the school it is an end.

After 62 years and 806 graduates, the nursing facility, having concluded a three-year phase out program, closes its door, sad because its work is done, proud that the work has been done well.

Its graduates, who numbered only four in 1907, then and now, are testimony to the long-time achievements of the school. Spread out over the world, they function in all types of nursing whether with the Army in Vietnam, as private, industrial or institutional nurses or in the administrative field.

Ulster County's first visiting nurse, especially for tubercular patients, was Miss Anna O'Shea, a Benedictine graduate, although in its earlier days the school was known as "Our Lady of Victory School of Nursing."

Miss Mary Hamburger, a graduate of the first class, became recognized for her work in opening an isolation hospital in a public school in Wilbur during a local small pox epidemic. She later served for 10 years as director of nurses at the local Tuberculosis Hospital. The first religious graduate from Benedictine, and there have been about a dozen, was Sister M. Berenice, who served many years as a hospital administrator.

Many Local Graduates

Although students have come from far and wide there have been many local graduates,

FIRST GRADUATING CLASS—1907

among them Mrs. Mary O'Neill, '31, was employed by the Ulster County Department of Social Services and Miss Kay Wiseman, '35, Kingston Lab and various blood banks. If the school closing is nostalgic for anyone, it is especially so for Sister M. Callista, supervisor; Miss Mary Feeney, its director since 1926. A graduate of Benedictine, in 1925, she has remained in charge for 43 years.

Sister Callista received her education at Marquette University, Catholic University and Teacher's College, Columbia University.

Benedictine Hospital itself had its beginnings with the Benedictine Sisters of Elizabeth, N. J. who were admitted into the Archdiocese of New York in 1901 for the purpose of establishing a sanitarium and training school for nurses.

On Nov. 2 of the same year, Sister Aloysius Malloy, a native Kingstonian and three other nuns were sent to Kingston for the difficult task of planning the work of the new sanitarium.

A brick cottage at 295 West Chester Street was leased by the sisters and formally opened Dec. 4, 1902 under the name "Our Lady of Victory Sanitarium."

The first students, admitted in 1904, graduated in 1907 and the school was granted Regents registration in 1905. There were frequent changes in the position of director for many years until Sister Callista was appointed in 1926.

The first residence for nurses was erected in 1920 but soon enrollment increased and by 1950 students were housed in four buildings and a fifth was being used as classroom space. The present school on Mary's Avenue was completed in 1959 and dedicated by His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman.

World War Service

Many of Benedictine's graduate nurses served with the Army and Navy in World War I and II. Lillian Hagleweide and Isabel Davis served overseas. During World War II most of the students served the cadet corps in military hospitals throughout the country.

A number of graduates are also serving in Vietnam and in veterans' hospitals in this country at the present time.

The school has enjoyed full accreditation from the National League of Nursing since the early part of its establishment. Graduation ceremonies will take place Sunday at 4 in St. Mary's Auditorium, Kingston. The Rev. Daniel J. McGrath, CSSR, professor of communications at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus will give the main address.

Will Give Diplomas

The graduates will be presented by the Rev. Joseph N. Hogan, chaplain of Benedictine Hospital and the diplomas will be given by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph G. McIntyre, president of the advisory board of Benedictine Hospital.

Graduates include: Joanne Berardi, Dolores Jump, Penelope Ross and Mary Wenzel, all of Kingston; Mary Meara of Rhinebeck; Kathleen O'Sullivan and Elaine Watts of Albany; Elizabeth Swintoka of Hudson; Nancy Notarnicola of Catskill; Maryann McLaughlin of Cemen-ton and Hendrika te Riele of Ticonderoga.

Others are Michele Dono, Christine Duke, Margaret Haines, Susan Hessner, Nora Hogan, Kathleen McCloskey, Geraldine Mitchell, Rose Marie Nugent and Linda Rubino.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

My grandmother saves all her old nylon stockings and uses them to store onions in.

She drops an onion in the toe, ties a knot, puts in another, ties a knot and so on until the stocking is full.

Then she hangs the stockings on hooks in her garage and cuts off onions from the bottom as needed.

This prevents rotting or sprouting for a long, long time.

Mrs. Warren Tenney

This is a great idea for those of you who are planting a garden and wish to store some of those nice onions you raise. Happy gardening to you all!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

For bachelors, bachelor girls and couples who are forever throwing dried bread away: Save the bread bag from your last loaf.

Then buy a large loaf. Cut this loaf in half (with the wrapping still on), take four slices from the top of each half and put these in the bread bag you saved.

Now you have three packages you can wrap tightly by folding excess wrapping. Put one in the freezer, one in the refrigerator and one in your bread box.

Results—no wasting of bread anymore.

Just a mere male

You may think you're just "mere," kind sir!

We think you're great!

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I glue paper plates to the bottoms of my cans of paint to catch the drippings and save a clean up.

Miss Joanne Mazowiecki, formerly of Rosendale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph and Mary Mazowiecki, 4 Edgewood Drive, Newburgh, became the bride of Brian Andreoletti, Sunset Farms, Wappingers Falls, son of Mrs. Helena Andreoletti, RD 2, Vermont, and the late Carlo Andreoletti, on Saturday May 24, at Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. Dominick A. Leo officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a floor-length peau satin gown, accented with Alencon lace on French net. The gown featured long tapered sleeves, a lace trimmed A-line skirt and a cathedral length train. Her bouffant silk illusion veil secured by a matching lace petal cluster trimmed with seed pearls, orange blossoms and crystal beading. She carried a cascade of miniature white carnations with two white orchids.

Miss Lynn Mazowiecki, 4 Edgewood Drive, Newburgh, served as maid of honor for her sister. Attendants were Carol Ciuccio, Connie Amorosi, Patricia Elgee, all of Newburgh; Nancy Yonetti, Kingston; and Kenise DeWitt, Balmville. Kim Ferguson, Wallkill, was a junior attendant. They wore floor-length lime karate gowns, styled with matching lace, sheath fronts, and full-gathered backs. Matching floral clusters, rimmed with pearls, held their matching veils. They carried miniature pink carnations and pink pompons.

George Ferguson, Mountainview Avenue, Wallkill, served as best man. Ushers were Russell Twilley, Fred Zaitz, Thomas Sholdonick, all of Wappingers Falls; William Sheer, Vailgate; and Michael Comicz, Newburgh. Christopher Ciaccio, Newburgh, was a junior attendant.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception for 185 guests was held at Meadowbrook Lodge.

The bride is a graduate of Newburgh Free Academy and is employed by Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation. Her husband attended Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., and is employed by Employers Insurance of Wausau. He received an honorable discharge from the U.S. Army on April 30, 1967.

Upon their return from San Juan, Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, and the Virgin Islands, the couple will reside at Sunset Farms, Wappingers Falls.

Miss Carol Ann Schiavone, daughter of Robert Schiavone of Kingston, and Mrs. Kevin Reynolds Sr. of Saugerties, became the bride of Pietro DiPaola, son of Mr. and Mrs. Domonick DiPaola of Glasco, June 1, at St. Joseph's Church, Glasco.

The Rev. Joseph M. Santulin officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of silk organza and French lace. The bodice had a mandarin neckline which was trimmed with sequins, and featured full lace sleeves. An A-line skirt was accented with a wide band of lace at the hemline and her cathedral train detached at the empire waist. Her headpiece was a band of blossoms which was attached to a cathedral illusion veil, accented with large lace appliques. She carried a circular bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Miss Rosalba DiPaola, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a sheath-style gown of aqua chiffon with a demi coat of avocodo. The empire waist and neckline were encircled with silk flower braid and she wore a stylized headpiece with a matching tulle veil. She carried yellow roses.

Attendants were Mrs. Joseph Saracco, Mrs. Fernando Saracco, and Mrs. Fred Costello, all sisters of the bridegroom. Miss Maria Tagliaferro, niece of the bridegroom, served as flowergirl. The attendants' orange over maize gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant and the flowergirl's orange gown was fashioned similarly. They all carried yellow roses.

Angelo DiPaola, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Joseph Saracco, Dr. Fernando Saracco and Fred Costello, all brothers-in-law of the bridegroom. John Hicks, cousin of the bride, served as ring-bearer.

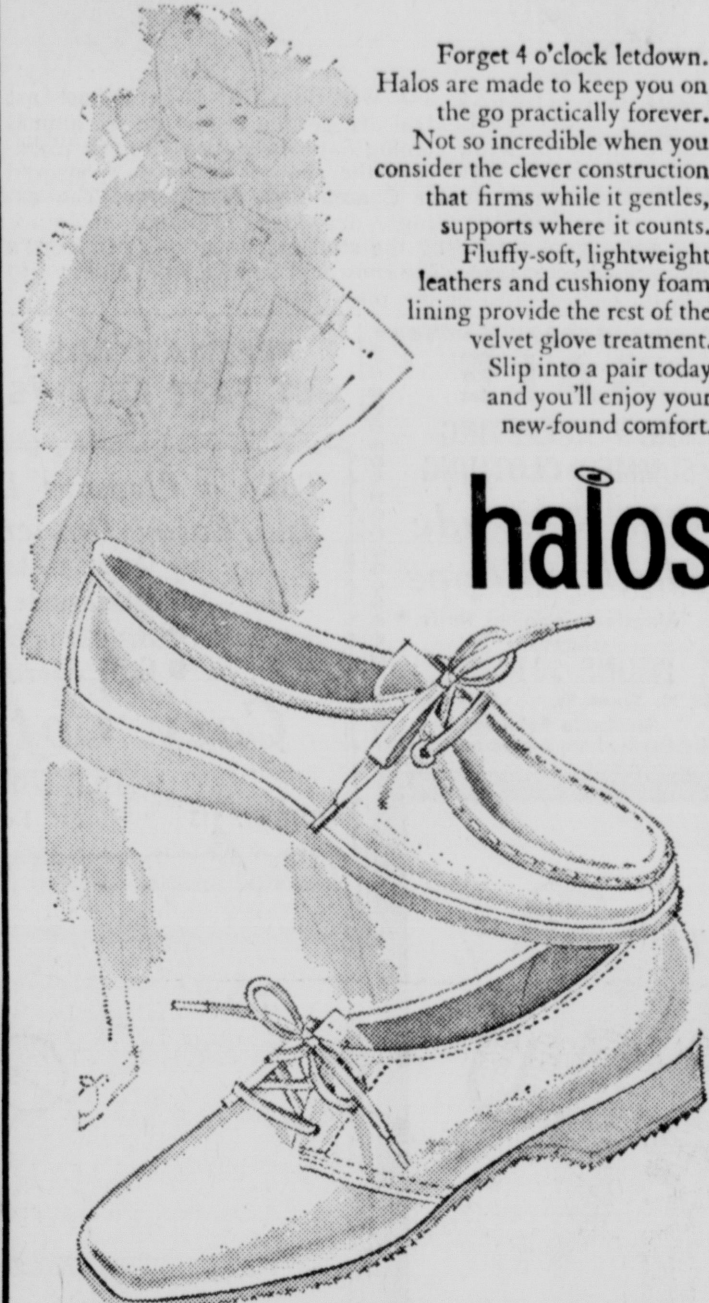

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Capri '400' Restaurant, Port Ewen.

The bride is a graduate of Saugerties High School and Richard the First School of Beauty Culture. Her husband is an alumnus of L'Oreal of Paris Beauty School, Naples, Italy. He served in the Italian Army and is now the proprietor of Pietro's Beauty Salon, Shoprite Square, Albany Avenue Ext., Kingston. Upon their return from their wedding trip to Europe, they will reside in Glasco.

One-Act Plays at Bard

Three one-act plays will be presented at Bard College this weekend in conclusion of the spring season of the college Theatre of Drama and Dance. Each is by a young playwright who is currently distinguished by success off Broadway, and each will be presented under the direction of Charles Kakatskis.

"It's Called the Sugar Plum" by Israel Horowitz stars Elizabeth Gavaris and Anthony Rutledge. "Red Cross" by Sam Shepard features Richard Bilangl, Esther Indenbaum and Christine Larsen. Members of the young menage in "Home Free" by Lanford Wilson are Julia Beasley and Rufus Botzow.

Performances will be Saturday through Tuesday, June 7 through 10, at 8:30 p.m. Admission is free, but reservations should be made in advance by calling the Bard Theatre between 2 and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

COMING SATURDAY TO WOODSTOCK—High School art students at Onteora Central are getting ready for the annual OSC Student Art Show coming Saturday, June 7 to the Woodstock Playhouse. This year the show is being co-sponsored by the Woodstock Junior Chamber of Commerce. The exhibit will include paintings, drawings, graphics, sculpture and photography done by the students involved in Onteora's high school art classes. The show will be held from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on the lawn of the playhouse.

Garden Club Meets Recently

The Saugerties Society of Little Gardens met recently at the home of Mrs. Dorance Baker of Spaulding Court, with Mrs. Robert Finger, treas., presiding.

Reporting on an article, The Mighty Marigold, Mrs. Augustus Modjeska of the Horticulture Committee informed the group that the meadow nematode, an eelworm which feeds on roots, can be controlled by the marigold. A chemical produced by the plant kills the pest and sharply reduces their population for several years.

No convenient, economical method of control for the home garden is commercially available. The planting of marigolds completely eliminated the need for man-made fumigants in the soil for as long as three years in this type of control, according to scientists at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station.

After a report by Mrs. Brendan Dooley, Civic Beautification chairman, it was decided to donate $50 toward the planting of three Village entrance signs, which are being maintained by the Village of Saugerties.

Members are reminded that the annual picnic will take place on Wednesday, June 11, at the home of Mrs. Augustus Modjeska, 15 Esopus Drive.

Each member is to donate a favorite covered dish, silverware and chair.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Robert Finger, Mrs. Augustus Modjeska and Mrs. William Waldele.

AUXILIARY SOCIAL—Representatives of 30 Auxiliaries, sponsored by members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, attended a get-acquainted social at the Ulster Hose Company No. 5 firehouse on Tuesday, June 3. This event was held in conjunction with the July Convention of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, which will be hosted by Ulster Hose Company 5 in celebration of its 25th anniversary. Among those at the social were (l-r) Dorothy Thomas, president, Ulster Hose Company Auxiliary; Ellen Crookston, president, Rosendale Active Hose No. 1; Barbara Dargan, president Saugerties Hook and Ladder; Mary Van Kleeck, chairman of the social. Open House Slated By Nursery School

On Monday, June 9, and Wednesday, June 11, from 9 a.m. to 1:30 a.m., the Stone Ridge Cooperative Nursery School will hold "Open House." It is hoped that all interested members of the community will come to visit and acquaint themselves with the school, children, teachers and program. Parents of three and four year old children interested in the Nursery School program should particularly take this opportunity to see the school in "action."

Registration for the 1969-70 school year will take place on June 12 at 8 p.m. at the Nursery School. Parents interested in this registration meeting should contact Mrs. Robert Diamond or Mrs. Othman Abu-Gheida at Stone Ridge.

Enrollment of the school is limited. Three and four year old children may attend; three year olds must be three before December 1, 1969.

The Stone Ridge Nursery School is a cooperative, non-sectarian non-profit organization. The purpose of the school is to provide the child with supervised play and learning experiences with children his own age. A cooperative nursery school means that all the parents are involved in the operation of the school.

Mrs. William Schwarz, a former kindergarten teacher, is the Nursery School's teacher-director. Her experience in education makes her well-qualified to guide the education of pre-school children. Mrs. Schwarz is assisted by Mrs. John H. Thornton and participating parents on a rotating basis.

The Nursery School is held at Christ the King Episcopal Church in Stone Ridge. The school is in session on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. following the same calendar as the Rondout Valley Central School system.

On Wednesday, May 28, the Nursery School children were entertained with a puppet show performance of Hansel and Gretel, presented by the Junior League of Kingston. The League women giving the performance were Mrs. David Bird, Mrs. Robert Murray and Mrs. Matthew Hasbrouck Jr.

The show was one of many exciting and educational activities the children have participated in this year. In addition to the regular school program they have enjoyed many field trips acquainting them with their community. Recently the children culminated their study about trains by taking a train trip from Poughkeepsie to Rhinebeck.

Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

Spring goes by so fast these days. The snowdrops, winter flowers really, were displaced by crocuses and grape hyacinths, to yield in turn to trillium and trout lilies, bloodroot and daffodils. Tulips next, lilacs fading, peonies in bud, iris beginning to open, and suddenly without warning it is June.

The children are happy to look forward: the end of school, swimming in the lake, and picnics in the long, long evenings. They can't wait. But older folks savor the seasons, draw them through their hands like a silk thread, let's not be in such a hurry, let's keep it spring for a while, as if we could. I remember an elderly aunt who prefaced every announced intention with "if I live." We used to laugh at her and tell her she would live forever. But of course she did not, nor shall we.

I can imagine that in extreme old age every hour must be precious. There is always that cloud on the horizon, no matter how bright the day, that summons to which we are all subject. For this hour we have escaped. What a wonderful hour, better than all the hours of our younger days which we never thought about but simply grasped and crowded together and were not sorry to see go by.

Perhaps this is one of the chief benefits of age, living this hour to the full, and of course looking back fondly on all the hours we shall not live again. We can be grateful that on the whole the agreeable hours are the ones we remember best. Except for a few unfortunate happenings which we recall vividly but they are usually trivial and merely embarrassing. I recall when I was about fourteen I was invited to a wedding breakfast, being much the youngest of the party. As we sat at the table the maid came behind me to set my plate in front of me at the same time that I raised my hand in an airy gesture. The plate went on the floor, creamed oysters it was, the hostess said it was no matter, but I noticed that when her plate was finally served to her it had only one oyster on it. I had flung her portion on the carpet. It took me years to get over the shame of that moment.

Our bits of humiliation are about as unimportant as that. Yet not always. There is a story about Heywood Brown, the well-known columnist, known to his friends as a large, clumsy, untidy man with a kind heart. At a house party he knocked over a bottle of ink on the table by his bed. Horrified, he fled without apology, but the next day he returned to make his amends in person, carrying a large bunch of flowers. He was asked to sit down and wait; he did so, but presently he was aware that he was not just sitting on a cushion. He rose and found his hostesses small kitten, crushed under his weight. This time he left and did not come back.

Few mistakes are as bad as this. Most of them we can remember and laugh at. Life on the whole has been worth remembering. And now this hour, this immediate hour, which we can live through minute by minute, making the time go slowly, making spring last longer than otherwise it would.

Tiny Tips

You can store baked rolls in your freezer up to 12 months.

For a different taste, add cottage cheese to scrambled eggs just before serving.

Buttermilk makes an excellent substitute for sour cream on baked potatoes.

Mix grated cheese and buttered bread crumbs; sprinkle over tomato halves; broil. Delicious served with broiled chops.

Thread scallops on skewers alternating with squares of bacon and small mushroom caps. Brush with butter and broil.

Mets Are Soaring on Cloud No. 2 After Seventh Straight Victory

By United Press International

The Chicago Cubs, leaders of the Eastern Division of the National League from the first day of the season, continue to ride the hot bats of Randy Hundley and Ernie Banks while their nearest competitors, the New York Mets, surge to the top of the standings behind razor-sharp pitching.

The Cubs won their seventh straight game Wednesday with Hundley's three-run homer the key blow in a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros. Banks drove in two runs with a homer and a single as Chicago maintained its 8 1/2-game lead over the surprising Mets.

New York got a combined 15-inning shutout from rookie Jack DiLauro, Tug McGraw and Roy Taylor as the Mets ran their winning streak to seven games with a 1-0 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The seven consecutive victories tie the longest Met winning streak in their eight-year history.

In other National League action, San Francisco defeated Montreal 8-3, Cincinnati downed Pittsburgh 5-3, San Diego blanked Philadelphia 3-0 and St. Louis edged Atlanta 4-3.

The Cubs, who won 10 of their first 11 games, haven't stopped flexing their muscles at the plate. Banks, who leads the majors in runs-batted-in with 45, is only one of four Cubs who have knocked in 30 or more runs. Ron Santo (38), Billy Williams (30) and Hundley (30) are the other RBI leaders.

Hundley, whose homer was his third game-winning hit in the last three games, leads the club with a .315 average. Williams has a .300 mark while light-hitting Don Kessinger is up to .292.

Hundley now is tied with Santo for the club lead in homers with nine while Banks has stroked eight this season. Hundley has driven in 12 runs streak.

Hundley made only one during the Cubs' winning official trip to the plate as the Astro pitchers carefully pitched around the burly catcher, walking him twice. "I don't know whether they were intentional," Hundley said, "But they didn't give me anything to hit and the last time was on four straight pitches."

After Banks' homer put the Cubs in front in the second, they fell behind 4-1 on Jesus Alou's run-scoring single, a balk by winner Ferguson Jenkins and a two-run homer by pitcher Tom Griffin.

Carew Bats - Steals Victory for Twins

By United Press International

Rod Carew, the American League's leading batter, had three hits, scored the deciding run in the sixth inning on Graig Nettles' sacrifice fly and stole home for the fifth time this season as the Minnesota Twins edged the New York Yankees 4-2 Wednesday night.

Carew, who boosted his batting average to .399, doubled in the sixth, moved to third on a groundout and scored the Twins' third run on Nettles' long fly. In the eighth, Carew singled, took second on a walk, moved to third on a fly out and beat reliever Lindy McDaniel's pitch to the plate for Minnesota's final run.

The Twins had a pair of runs in the fifth off nemesis Mel Stottlemyre, who had won 14 of his 17 previous decisions against the Twins. John Roseboro doubled and scored on Leo Cardenas' single, Stottlemyre hit Cesar Tovar with a pitch and Ted Uhlaender lashed an RBI single.

Run producing singles by Ken McMullen and Bernie Allen in the sixth inning snapped a 1-1 tie and lifted the Washington Senators to a 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Frank Howard opened the game-winning rally with a one-out double, Mike Epstein was intentionally walked and McMullen singled home Howard. Allen singled to score Epstein.

Boog Powell, Don Buford and Clay Dalrymple smashed solo home runs to back Tom Phoebus' five-hit pitching and lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-1 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Buford homered on Jim and two outs later, Powell hit games. Dalrymple's first American League homer came leading off the fourth.

Brooks Robinson drove in two runs with a pair of sacrifice flies.

Gail Hopkins, Ed Herrmann and Bobby Knopp smashed home runs to lift the Chicago White Sox to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Hopkins wiped out a 2-1 deficit with his second career home run after Luis Aparicio and Carlos May singled. Herrmann's first major league homer had tied the game at 1-1 in the second.

Bobby Knopp had a two-run homer in the sixth to help Tommy John record his fourth victory in seven decisions.

Sam McDowell struck out 10 batters in 6 2/3 innings and ignited a five-run rally in the third inning with one of his three hits to left the Cleveland Indians to a 10-4 rout of the Seattle Pilots.

Lee Maye, Ken Harrelson and Tony Horton drove in seven runs for the Indians and Vern Fuller hit his first homer of the season in the ninth. McDowell was lifted in the seventh with Cleveland holding a 9-3 lead.

Ferraro Hitless

The Rochester Red Wings moved into fifth place ahead of the Columbus Jets with a 5-3 victory at Rochester.

Mike Ferraro went hitless in three trips to the plate but, was credited with a run batted in on a sacrifice fly to the outfield. Mike is batting .337.

In other action in the International league the Tidewater Tides swamped the Buffalo Bisons 11-5. Toledo won a squeaker over Louisville 2-1 and Richmond stopped Syracuse 3-2.

Ike Brown collected all three Mud Hen hits, one was his ninth home run of the season and two singles for batting honors in the league for the day.

Fired 63 in 1951

Back in August, 1951, Hughes, playing in the first Herdegen Memorial Golf Tournament fired a 7-under-par 63 to equal the amateur course record then held by Judson Phillips, a Woodstock artist.

Hughes, long known in the area golfing fraternity as the "Sweet Swinger," blistered the short but tricky Woodstock layout with seven birdies and an eagle-2 on the par-four 7th hole where wedged in from 50 yards out.

He posted four pars on the front nine where he rolled in birdie putts on No. 4 (6 feet); No. 5 (1-foot chip), and No. 6 (6 feet).

On the back nine, Hughes turned on the steam to match a figure now shared by only three players—Smith, veteran Schenectady pro Armand Farina and himself at 29.

He launched the birdie barrage on the first hole (10th) with a 15-footer, his longest of the day. Other birdies followed on the 12th (5 feet); 14th (18 inches); and 15th which he birdied for the second time from six feet.

The four-time Ulster County amateur champion carded nines of 32-29 to tie the record set by amateur Charles Murphy Jr. of Pinehaven in an Eastern New York Golf Association tournament on Aug. 14, 1968.

The nines posted by Hughes and Murphy in their record-shattering assault on the lush Woodstock fairways were identical.

Hughes set his record in open play in a foursome that included Charlie Stauffer, Joe White and Ed Speisman.

Sagarese Resigns Post at Marlboro

MARLBORO Ed Sagarese, one of the most successful basketball coaches in the Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) has announced his retirement as teacher and coach at Marlboro High School.

Sagarese, who piloted the Dukes to the UCAL basketball championship with a 17-1 record in the 1966-67 season, said he is quitting the coaching profession to enter the business field.

"Due to an excellent offer in the business world, I find it to be of great personal advantage to make this change," he said. During his three years as varsity basketball coach, Sagarese's teams won 40 games and lost 16 overall. After winning the UCAL title in 1966-67, his Dukes finished second the next two seasons.

His teams were invited to the Section 9 tournament three times and lost their opener each time.

Sagarese also coached the only undefeated track team that Marlboro ever had in the UCAL. Three of his boys advanced to the State Intersectional Meet.

Old Timers Induct Six to Hall of Fame

KINGSTON ceremonies were: P. Joseph Beichert (for John Hartman); Thomas M. Davitt (for Joe Dulin); and Charles J. Tiano, the toastmaster, for Addison Jones.

Bernard A. (Bud) Culliton, who was the first Hall of Fame inductee in 1950, delivered the Old Timers Baseball Association inducted three living members and three posthumously into its Hall of Fame at the 19th annual banquet at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Living members included Addison Jones, Joe Dulin and John Hartman. Posthumous awards went to Ernie Best, John Carpenter and Louis Brown.

The Old Timers also made a special award to Willard H. Sahloff, of New York, a vice president of General Electric and member of the local Hall of Fame.

The award, made by William R. Scully, secretary-treasurer of the association, was in recognition of Sahloff's contributions to the group. He co-sponsors an academic scholarship with the Old Timers for the top Kingston High School player.

The award which is for combined excellence in academics and playing skill went last night to Charlie Janes, 1968, KHS pitching ace, who now attends Dartmouth College.

Pete Helmich received the Old Timers Baseball Player of the Year trophy for top KHS performer for 1968.

Joe Owens, athletic director and baseball and wrestling coach at New Paltz State U., was the guest speaker. A talented banquet circuit orator, Owens delighted the greybeards with a hard-hitting speech that was both humorous and thought-provoking.

Participating in the induction ceremonies were: P. Joseph Beichert (for John Hartman); Thomas M. Davitt (for Joe Dulin); and Charles J. Tiano, the toastmaster, for Addison Jones.

Rafael Osuna Dead, Was Tennis Star

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rafael Osuna, the king of Mexican tennis, was among 79 believed killed Wednesday in the mountain crash of a Mexican jet airliner about 31 miles west of Monterrey.

W.C. Lindsay Hurls 1-Hitter

SAUGERTIES W.C. (CHOPS) Lindsay saw a blooper over the second base men head in the top of the seventh inning prevent him from pitching a no-hit, shutout.

Chops is known for his riser and this reporter can attest to it being called a good riser. I've batted against him I've swung at a pitch that looked to be low on its way in, but after swinging and missing, I'd glance back at the catcher. He would be standing with arms extended above my head in the position at which he caught the pitch.

The 47 year old chucker threw a wild pick-off attempt and allowed the run to score losing his shutout bid. Chops has allowed only one earned run in four games, given up only nine hits while compiling his 4 wins without defeat.

Scarsell's led off the opening inning with two runs and really didn't need to add any more the way Chops was pitching. Henry Rua had a homer, Roger Linhurst tripled and Ray Carlino had a double for the extra base hits off Ed Pelham.

Skeets Carroll led Helmsortel Insurance to their first league victory by stroking a grand slam home run in the first inning to go on and win the shortened contest, because of the ten run rule, 13-3 over Morgan's Town House who occupy the cellar position.

Sam Tesoriero tossed a neat three hitter enroute to the victory.

Carroll added a double to his grand slam and Bob Verrell had a double for the Insurance men. Pete Anderson had a double for Morgan's.

Poughkeepsie's Lasers jumped on Ron Thomas for six hits and eight runs in the first inning and then coasted the rest of the way behind the pitching of Mickey SaVino and Mike Kelly, defeating the Kingston Braves, 13-7, in a Hudson Valley American Legion Rookie League game, played Wednesday night at Riverview Field.

SaVino got the win, but tired in the third and fourth innings and had to be replaced by Mike Kelly. Thomas just didn't have it in the first inning and was relieved by Bob Spears, who finished the contest.

Craig Digilio paced the Lasers' attack with three hits in four trips, including a two-run triple in the opening stanza. Digilio also scored two runs. Otto DiStefano, Vic Schelechow and Gary Stokes chipped in with two hits apiece. DiStefano doubled in the first inning and Stokes tripled in two runs in the three-run fifth for the winners.

Bright spots for Kingston was the play of Charlie Moore, Ulster County Community College star, and Greg Rios, classy shortstop from Kingston High School. Moore tripled in the three-run third stanza for the locals and Rios was the only Brave to manage two hits.

It was the second game of the new season for the Braves.

On Jan. 13, 1949, another 23 horses died when fire destroyed a winter stable. Again the loss was put at $150,000.

Among the better known horses killed in 1961 were Made Hanover and Ultra Way.

Only one horse escaped in 1949, in which some of the best known trotters of the day perished. Among them were Silver Spur and Heart of Gold.

Charles Peckham, 10 horses; Harold White, 8 horses and Harold Story, 25 horses.

Jounce, sister to Jostle and two-year-old filly of the year last year was in a neighboring barn. Trainers said she would have been in the barn which burned if there had been room.

Others among the horses lost were Ricci Great A valued at $60,000 and Tough Time, valued at about $25,000.

Saratoga Raceway spokesmen said tonight's program would be conducted as usual.

As firemen picked through the smoldering wreckage of the barn this morning trainers exercised their horses nearby, glancing nervously at the grim scene.

A city policeman said he saw the night sky around the race track emblazoned in orange as he drove toward it from across the city.

He had left the track after a routine patrol at about 3:40 a.m.

Track officials had no formal damage estimate and declined to speculate on the cause of the blaze.

The fire is the second major disaster to strike the raceway in this decade and the third since 1949.

Twenty-one horses were killed by a fire that swept through a 30-stall barn on Oct. 7, 1961. The loss then, including the equipment, was set at $150,000.

Jounce, sister to Jostle and two-year-old filly of the year last year was in a neighboring barn. Trainers said she would have been in the barn which burned if there had been room.

Others among the horses lost were Ricci Great A valued at $60,000 and Tough Time, valued at about $25,000.

Saratoga Raceway spokesmen said tonight's program would be conducted as usual.

As firemen picked through the smoldering wreckage of the barn this morning trainers exercised their horses nearby, glancing nervously at the grim scene.

A city policeman said he saw the night sky around the race track emblazoned in orange as he drove toward it from across the city.

He had left the track after a routine patrol at about 3:40 a.m.

Track officials had no formal damage estimate and declined to speculate on the cause of the blaze.

The fire is the second major disaster to strike the raceway in this decade and the third since 1949.

Twenty-one horses were killed by a fire that swept through a 30-stall barn on Oct. 7, 1961. The loss then, including the equipment, was set at $150,000.

On Jan. 13, 1949, another 23 horses died when fire destroyed a winter stable. Again the loss was put at $150,000.

Among the better known horses killed in 1961 were Made Hanover and Ultra Way.

Only one horse escaped in 1949, in which some of the best known trotters of the day perished. Among them were Silver Spur and Heart of Gold.

Charles Peckham, 10 horses; Harold White, 8 horses and Harold Story, 25 horses.

Dear Abby

Discontinue Gifts

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Every time my wife and I go to visit a friend or relative, my wife thinks she has to bring a little gift for the children. I think it's a nice idea when the children are appreciative, but I put my foot down when it comes to a certain family.

My wife's sister married very well and she has three spoiled, selfish children, under ten years of age. No matter what we bring them (and my wife always spends a little more on them just to make a good impression) it is received with, "Oh, is that ALL?" Or, "I have one just like it."

I told my wife that from now on, we'll bring those children nothing. She says she agrees, they don't deserve anything, but if she came empty-handed her sister would look at her funny. What would you do?

TILLIE'S HUSBAND
DEAR HUSBAND: I would let my sister look at me any way she wished, and would discontinue bringing gifts to ungrateful children.

DEAR ABBY: What does a wife, who really loves her husband, do when he asks for "permission" to spend one night with his old girl friend to find out if he has really gotten over her or not?

Boy and I have been married two years and have a small baby and I want this marriage to last. I am 23 and Boyd is 24.

I knew Boyd went steady with a girl all thru high school, but I assumed that after we were married he would forget about her. Now he tells me that she had an unhappy marriage and is back in town again.

Abby, I have my pride, I don't want Boyd wondering whether he still cares for his "first love." I will say this for him, at least he was honest with me. He could have seen this girl again without telling me and I would never have known. What do you advise?

HEARTACHES
DEAR HEARTACHES: Don't hang any medals on Boyd for his honesty. It's a maneuver. You are married to an immature 24-year-old who is looking for "mother's approval" to be a naughty boy. Let him know that you are not his mother, you're the wife he took when he promised to forsake all others, and that's what you expect him to do.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a guy I'll call Willie. I'm 19 and Willie is 22. I enjoy talking about things like what kind of a house we are going to live in, how many children we will have, and things like that. I suppose talk like this is sort of premature because we aren't officially engaged yet.

To be perfectly honest, I guess I do most of the talking because Willie is the quiet type. Is it wrong to talk like that or not?

LIKES WILLIE
DEAR LIKES: It's not "wrong" — but it's not very smart. I am reminded of an old recipe for rabbit stew. First catch the rabbit.

DEAR ABBY: My dear mother passed away recently. I have three sisters. We are all married and have families. None of us is poor or rich, just in-between.

Over the years we have all given Mother and Dad (Dad passed away three years ago) many gifts. None of these had great value, just nice, useful items.

Now that Mother is gone my oldest sister has taken unto herself the right to distribute all of Mother's things. This is fine with me, however. I feel that the gifts we gave Mother should now be ours. Sometimes two or three of us went in together to buy a gift, and in such cases, I think all of those who gave the gift should decide who should have it. I know this is the way my mother would have wanted it.

I just wonder what you think of this. I only want back those things which I gave my mother. Two of my sisters feel the same, but the oldest thinks that SHE should make those decisions. What is your opinion?

WITHHOLD MY NAME
DEAR WITHHOLD: I agree with you.

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't force issues. Something is occurring behind the scenes—you need to know more. Wait and observe. Cycle will move up. But, for today, gather information and analyze it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A friend with money problem could play significant role. Be gracious and sympathetic without getting involved. You have responsibilities elsewhere. Realize this—act accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't make important move without confiding in mate, partner. Some today are supersensitive. You get opportunity for promotion. But there could be legal complications. Act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect is complicated today. Means money question is involved in travel plans. Ultimately you do get going. But be sure you know where, when and why. And check the cost.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid extravagance. You want to impress, to be charming and magnetic. But this does not mean you have to overspend. Realize this and save yourself money and embarrassment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Future security could be affected by decisions. Key is to separate fantasy from actuality. Don't make mistake of seeing persons, situations only as you wish they could be.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Soft-spoken approach is best. Be diplomatic. Those in authority are on your side. There is really no need to prove yourself.

Realize this—act in gracious, mature manner. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Immature persons, children and others, may have certain demands. But you should take long-range view. Don't acquiesce merely for sake of convenience. If firm today, your tomorrow could be bright.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid excess speed. Control tendency to act on impulse. Give attention to home, property, real-estate transactions. Be original without being radical. Strive for new approach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are forced to make decision because of circumstances. Be receptive to mood, trend. Have alternatives at hand. Don't depend on only one method. Be sure you have choice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Social activity is emphasized. Have a good time but don't speak out of turn. Means be discreet. Many ideas are proposed. Deal with most in humorous manner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle high. But one in authority may be argumentative. Stand tall; adhere to principles. You will receive benefit of any doubt. Past efforts pay off.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you love your home and you are affectionate. Your voice, sense of drama are highlighted. You are due for new adventure.

WHY WE SAY

FARM WORK: Our popular eating utensil, the fork, was not invented for eating. It was first introduced in England as a miniature model of a pitchfork used for stacking hay on the farm. The word for the farm instrument in Old English was "forca" for pitchfork.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

RETARDED: (Q.) A retarded boy I know is always talking to me. I want to be nice to him because he is unfortunate. But now he is telling everybody I'm his girl friend. They all tease me about him. I don't want to be known as his girl friend because he's so weird.

Can you please tell me how to get rid of him without hurting him?—E. in Newark, N. J.

(A.) Continue to be kind to the boy. If your friends cannot tell the difference between human kindness and infatuation they are not very smart and you don't need them.

This does not mean that you should lead the boy on, or date him.

Keep dating other boys or your steady, as the case may be. This will prove better than gossip or nasty arguments to show what the facts are.

But do always remember that it is a compliment for someone else to rebuffs to look upon you as an unusual girl.

PALE PINK: (Q.) My brother is getting married. I have a pink satin formal with pink velvet trim that I wore to my senior prom. Could I cut it off short and wear it to his wedding, or is it out of season now?—G. in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Your pink formal sounds too lovely to cut off. You can wear pale pink trimmed with velvet any time of the year provided the trim is brief.

Long dresses can be cut off, but I believe yours is a little dressy for a short dress.

Also it appears to be a little dressy for a wedding. I advise something simpler.

Serious Point in CBS Fuss

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Regardless of whether one is a fan of the Smothers Brothers, they raised a very serious point in their recent fuss with CBS-TV.

The brothers, who were fired by the network, were, as all televisioners know, extremely critical of the American position in the Vietnam War.

They made this clear repeatedly in their series of highly contemporary comedy and music.

There are those, in fact, who—while admiring the brothers—feel that one of the reasons for their drop in the ratings was that their political views were coming on rather heavily in the context of their show.

If the performers with one view of social and political life are subject to criticism by video people, shouldn't the same principle apply to entertainers of other viewpoints who make clear their feelings.

I believe the brothers brought up the point that Bob Hope has a position quite opposite from theirs, and yet no one in television—with authority—criticizes him.

Yet, on a matter of principle, it is fair to ask: If one entertainer is allowed to take a clear political position on television, why not all? And if one is clamped down on for political express, again—why not all? Popularity of a viewpoint, or unpopularity, has nothing to do with the principle. That is not what this country is all about.

Perhaps it is a purely business outlook that decides what is allowed—and what isn't —on video. Hope's specials are the most highly rated group of shows on video. His annual programs built around his visits to troops in Vietnam are virtually the most popular single television outings of the year. The Smothers Brothers, on the other hand, had pretty free rein when they were riding high in the ratings—but fell into network tangles when the statistics dropped.

That, of course, has nothing to do with principle. Or does it?

there's quite a trap in the play. Jean did not fall into it. He took the diamond lead in dummy, cashed one trump and went after clubs while one trump was still out against him. If the second club had been ruffed Jean would have been down two but in that case there would have been no play for the contract. When the second club went through, Jean ruffed a third club, entered dummy with a second trump play, ruffed another club, returned to dummy with a third trump, discarded his last diamond on the fifth club and conceded a heart trick.

Wrong Turn by Destroyer

BROTHERS THREE—This photo of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sage of rural Mohrara, Neb., was taken in March of this year. They are reported lost at sea in the South China Sea collision of the Australian carrier Melbourne and the U.S. Destroyer Frank E. Evans. From left are Gary, Gregory and Kelly. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans' group officials say the Navy Department hasn't received a report from the Evans' skipper, Cmdr. A.S. McLemore, or other officers who survived.

Most survivors were sleeping when the destroyer was chopped in two. In their first official account of the disaster, none of the survivors interviewed reported any prior warning. But naval officials at Pearl Harbor emphasized it did not necessarily mean there was none.

"A large part of the crew was asleep," a Navy spokesman said, "and everything happened so fast. There may have been sirens and bells—we don't know."

The forward section of the Evans sank within minutes, engulfing 73 seamen within the severed hull. Another was killed. His was the only body recovered.

All but one of the 199 survivors, six of them injured seriously, now are aboard the U.S. carrier Kearsarge bound for Subic Bay, Philippines. The other survivor was flown to a hospital in Cam Ranh Bay, South Vietnam.

Aboard the Kearsarge Wednesday, some of the survivors talked for the first time to Navy investigators.

They told of heroism among shipmates, fires and explosions following the impact and calmness despite the horror.

"At first I thought we had run aground," Seaman Apprentice Mark A. Gee of Port Angeles, Wash., said. "Suddenly, everything heaved to starboard."

Engineer 3.C. Charles M. Frey of San Mateo, Calif., said the impact knocked him through the ripped hull into the water.

Unlike the Australians, the U.S. Navy is saying virtually nothing in public about the incident pending the outcome of a joint U.S.-Australian investigation arranged Wednesday.

One reason for this, sources

"I looked around," he said. "I was alongside of the captain. We both hung on to debris and were soon picked out of the water by the Australians."

Later, McLemore stood on the flight deck of the Kearsarge and shook the hand of every survivor being transferred from the Melbourne.

The joint preliminary investigation, a rare procedure, will be conducted by a panel of three U.S. and three Australian naval officers, with U.S. Rear Adm. Jerome H. King as senior member.

A Pentagon announcement said the fact-finding body will determine "the nature of the incident, its causes, and how it happened."

A crucial question involves messages from the Melbourne

Jerusalem Violence On War Anniversary

JERUSALEM (AP) — Violence broke out in Jerusalem and the occupied territories today on the second anniversary of the six-day war between Arabs and Israelis.

A hand grenade was lobbed over the Old City's walls near Herod's Gate. One Israeli soldier and three Arabs were wounded, a police official reported.

Steel-helmeted troops carrying machine guns were on the spot within seconds. They moved into the walled city and began a house-to-house search. Six Arabs were arrested as suspects.

Troops in light trucks and troop carriers patrolled the per-

Chile Report For Rocky

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A over the weekend asked for postponement of the governor's visit after students threatened demonstrations. And in seven of the nine countries Rockefeller has visited, violence has marred his stays.

The governor issued a statement in New York expressing regret at the Chilean government's action but saying he fully understood it.

President Eduardo Frei's government decided Rockefeller had better stay away after two days of clashes between police and students in the capital. Wednesday a group of students stoned the U.S. Consulate and burned an American flag.

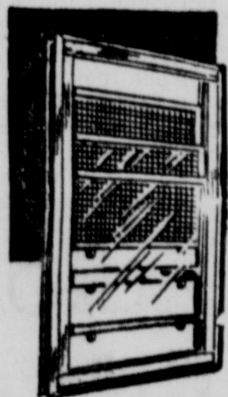

A Foreign Ministry communique said: "The Chilean government has informed Gov. Rockefeller of the convenience of suspending his visit to our country."

The communique added that Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes would be in Washington later this week and would call on President Nixon. Valdes also will get together with Rockefeller to discuss "the purposes and objectives" of Rockefeller's visit to Chile, the communique said.

Rockefeller and a large group of experts have completed two whirlwind tours of parts of Latin America and have two more around the rest of the area scheduled. The official purpose is to collect information and data on which the Nixon administration can formulate a new policy toward Latin America. But many Latin Americans consider the tour primarily a goodwill gesture.

Rockefeller's second swing last week was curtailed before it started when Peru said he wasn't welcome because Washington had cut off military aid to Peru. That leg was trimmed some more when Venezuela
